MY SECRET TO BREAKING ANTHONY CLARK'S 738 LB. BENCH PRESS RECORD.

Chris Confessore astonished the world by surpassing super heavyweight champ Anthony Clark's bench press record by blasting up 741 lbs.

Unlike Clark, who weighed 350 lbs. when he set the 738 lb. record, Chris shattered it at a mere body weight of 236 lbs.! This is the latest in an astounding string of records set by Chris in his 11 year career. He is now the only man to ever hold world records in five different weight classes, and the official title holder of the greatest bench press to date!

How does he do it?

Steroids? No!
Growth Hormone? No!

Genetics? Not even plausible.

At a height of just 5'4", combined with a small bone structure, Chris' feats of strength have defied the laws of physics. The secret is GH1000!

What is GH1000®?

GH1000 is a revolutionary system that includes a powerful, yet legal, anabolic compound in capsule form, plus an explosive clinically proven weight training program. One of the anabolic components of the GH1000 formula is Methoxyisoflavone.

Clinical evidence suggests that Methoxyisoflavone exerts identical anabolic effects as anabolic steroids without the side effects!

Chris states: "I believe my gains clearly demonstrate that GH1000 is the most powerful strength and muscle building system ever! GH1000 is so potent, its effects will blow away any anabolic substance on or off the market!"

Now for the first time ever, world class size and strength gains can be yours!

GH1000 is not for average gains! In fact, it's not even for above average gains! GH1000 is designed to help generate gains in super-human strength and mass the way Chris did. We guarantee it!*

Ervin Gainer unopposed at 114

This is the umpteenth time that meet director Dennis Brady has put on a competition at the Lincolnwood Radisson site (northwest of downtown Chicago), yet each contest seems to have fresh artwork/logos and even unique awards. This time he offered plaques with red, white, and blue suede inserts, just like you'd see on a powerlifting belt. He also had a set of those very clever ER racks, which got rave reviews. Sandy Brady did a great job of announcing, and although she and Dennis are divorced, they seemed to work together as well as ever.

In the 114 lb. class, Ervin Gainer of Indianapolis, Indiana, a premier strength athlete in a division where it's very hard to make weight, was unchallenged, but that shouldn't diminish his accomplishment of being the best flyweight in USA Powerlifting for the year 2000.

In the 123 lb. class, young Allen Whigham of Laurel, Maryland pushed up a 50 lb. advantage in the squat and deadlifted what Trey Cunningham (one of Billy Jack's boys down in Ruston, LA) missed, and that gave him an even greater final advantage than he had at subtotal time. He broke the 1200 barrier and posted nearly a 10 times bodyweight total. Enos Richard of Fort Hood, TX picked up 3rd spot over Sam Meadows of Elletsville, IN who attempted some masters record to no avail. An unfortunate casualty was Wil Taylor of Thornton, CO, who had a very difficult time making weight and this affected his lifting dramatically. He made a 402 squat with great difficulty, but 440 was simply way too heavy. He had to dump it and in the process he ended up falling backwards, striking his head on the lifting platform. As a precaution, officials kept him lying down for approximately 20 minutes until the paramedics could literally tape him into a stretcher and take him away. He gave a thumbs up signal on the way out and he did return to the meet later on.

In 132 lb. division, Tim Taylor of the United States Air Force did something that very few people have been able to do and that's win 10 consecutive national titles that led to IPF world team slots. Many times in the past he's had a fairly easy time of it, but Brandon Green has moved up to this weight class and he had a seven for seven day going before taking some unsuccessful big jumps in the deadlift to 606 for a national record and then to 650 in an attempt to challenge Tim for the top spot. Derick Edralin of Mililani, Hawaii picked up third spot. Justin Maile of Anchorage, Alaska was on hand to watch the proceedings, but he has suffered a partial patellar tear and is saving himself for the June World Championships. Had he not been injured, he planned to open in the squat with more than any of the lifters that did finish.

In the 148 lb. class, Jeremy Arias of Greeley, Colorado had the top squat and was explosive in the extreme with his first deadlift of 556, but he had to take it over. Jeremy is a well-rounded athlete and a brilliant new talent in this division, which is handy for future USA world team hopes. Mark Sigala of Lakewood, Colorado has had great difficulty getting more than 3 or 4 attempts in at the national championships. He has an immaculate style on the deadlift, but all he could get was a 606 this time. That allowed a new player, Scott Layman of Bakersfield, CA, to get in the mix and he had a chance to win it all, but he blew out of couple of squat suits on the way. Rick Grayes of Tampa, FL was another great stylist in the deadlift and he was able to get fourth in a hotly contested division over Fernando Corpuz of Mililani, Hawaii. There was a pack of lifters just behind Nando. Foremost among them was Greg Simmons of Bloomington, IN with a 1394 total. Keith Scisney, one of five Colorado lifters in this class, held on to get the 8th place over Los Alamos, New Mexico's David Bracken. Lance Slaughter, a great bench presser, finished out the totalers in this division, when Christopher Hughes ended up limping off the stage (breaking a toe?) before getting a deadlift. Chris Mirabella, a possible factor, did not appear for the competition, as he was recuperating from a minor back injury.

Wade Hooper had been suspended by the USA Powerlifting prior to the competition, as a result of his participation in the WPO professional contest in Florida on May 20th. Following a good deal of controversy, he was reinstated at a special executive committee meeting held during the national governing body meeting of the USA Powerlifting on the Friday prior to the competition, pending the examination of IPF bylaws regarding amateurism. Despite all this, which could have worn any strong man, Wade was able to put up a pretty good total. He stood up with a 727 squat but it didn't make it past the red lights. Robert Eaddy, of Conway, SC, weighed in quite light (3 1/2 kilos under the class limit), and did some very solid lifting all around to finish up ahead of Jeff Holzbauer of Bloomington, IL, another well balanced competitor. Matt Berry of Decatur, IL missed a few key attempts, otherwise he'd might have been in the hunt for third as well. Kenny Davis was originally entered in the lightweight division, but weighed in well over the limit and took 5th in the division. James Benemerito squatted well, but had difficulty getting a bench press in and then had balance problems in the deadlifts.

In the 181 lb. division, David Ricks conveniently found himself between assignments for the U.S. Navy. He will be taking a new position in Japan and moving his family over there, but he was able to training uninterrupted for this meet. His 688 miss in the squat was technical, and there's more there if he gets all three attempts. He just missed a 473 bench press, after a 699 deadlift, he asked the crowd, "Who's the Man?" Obviously, he is, because he went on to do a 744 for a Masters American record and a national record. His total of 1895 is very close to the amazing mark that Ray Benemerito posted not many years ago in this division. Dave was off right after the competition on a camping trip to upper Michigan to complete his son's work towards Eagle Scout status, quite an accomplishment for a young man of 15. In second place was the very thickly built Pat Beaumaster of Monticello, Minnesota, who got a state record in the bench press. Young Marcus Brandon, now in Atlanta, only made 4 attempts, but that was enough to stay ahead of Randy Perine of Bloomington, IN. Tim Stepney of Fort Hood, TX was entered, but did not appear. Eric Funakoshi of Hawaii was listed in the program as Eric Funakowski (hey, it's Chicago!). He actually ended up with 5 attempts in the squat, blowing a suit on his third attempt within the competition, but ended up with the repeats due to spotters grabbing the bar too soon and such, but he wasn't able to make any of his numerous attempts and had to take a shower early.

The 198s were a big class with big lifting. James McGlynn, a former USPF competitor, opened conservatively in each of the disciplines and then took some considerable jumps, and ended up doing a national record bench press of 518 on his third attempt. He posted a 1967 total and his only miss was a 738 deadlift which would have given him the magic 2000 number. James got started in the Marine Corps back in 1981, reading reports on Ed Coan in PL USA and has been at it ever since. He exhibited an amazing degree of muscularity and power that exceeded his proportions dramatically. A favorite in the division was Ray Benemerito of Landing, NJ. Ron Fernando watched Ray do some extremely explosive warm ups. He made a 705 squat comfortably, but 727 seemed almost painful on two attempts. Ray has never seen himself as a big bench presser, but he had to keep in sight of McGlynn, and 490 was the nice result. A smooth open with 705 in the deadlift led to a pass at 722. Although Ray's supporters were asking him to go to 810 to beat McGlynn if he went 2000, Ray settled down to 777 which would have given him the win. It was not a poundage altogether out of the question, but if he had made an attempt or two in the previous two categories, he might well have been able to pull the win out. Rob Wagner of Philadelphia sported quads designed by gods, and he made a 782 squat very easily and showed some real improvement in the deadlift, reportedly due to his new use of the hook grip. In fourth place was Craig Terry, who made ready to take a shot at a new American record of 783 in the deadlift, but it was just a bit too much. Mike Willet had a considerable chore getting a squat in and was not helped by a misload that had him take it over. Once through the squats and benches, he deadlifted quite nicely with a 699. Eric Thomas of Central Point, Oregon, also did some great deadlifting, ending with 694 in an 8 for 9 day. Gary Fertler ended up having to wrap and unwrap three times in the squat as a result of the Eric Funakoshi foibles, but he was able to get all of his three squats in. His Hawaiian buddies lead the cheers on his 710 deadlift attempt, shouting out "Do this and let's go eat". He missed, they ate anyway. Michael Mastrean of Pittsburgh, PA looked strong with a 727 squat, but it was not accepted by the judges on any of his three tries.

In the 220s, Tony Harris was the class of the class. He had a difficult time with a 777 squat on his second attempt, but he came back to make it nicely on his third. Char Gahagan of Ruston, LA is making good progress in rising from the junior and national collegiate level. He deadlifted conservatively, strategically taking the 760 he needed to secure second place. Scott Zwaanstra of Parker, Colorado achieved a rare distinction after blowing his suit on his third squat attempt at 683. He was allowed to repeat the lift because the spotters understandably grabbed the bar before he had absolutely stopped trying to finish his effort. He came back and made the repeat, and turned it into a 9 for 9 day. A very muscular Quincy Frank from Salt Lake City, Utah showed fierce potential, but missed several key lifts that kept him from moving up. Tony Succarotte tried a national bench press at 518, but wasn't successful and ended up in 5th place. Henry Gerard of Newport News, Virginia made only 4 attempts, and Joe Bell of Brandon, FL had depth problems on his squats, but pulled out a third attempt success with 622 to get a nice total. Rodney Lawary of Nashville, TN was not able to make the big increases in the deadlift that he had hoped for to move himself up. Steve Pincock of Linden, Utah suffered through a 3 for 9 day, making only his openers. In the 242 lb. division Jeff Douglas had a stellar 8 for 9 day that led to a 2000 lb. total and the win. Last year's champion, Kevin Stewart, now out of Lynwood, WA, apparently injured or re-injured himself on a 733 squat and limped off the platform not taking his third attempt. This injury effected him even in the bench press where he couldn't get his legs in a good position to drive and he made only one deadlift under obvious duress. James Jacobs of Clearwater, FL made all three deadlifts and enabled himself to win the second place award over Kevin. In fourth position, Dave Gonzalez out of Aurora, Colorado missed two squats, but crinkled his shaved scalp with intensity to go 6/6 beyond that challenge to secure the next spot. James Cahill started conservatively in the squat and deadlift and ended up with a 777 lb. pull for fifth place, ahead of Steve Mann of Poughkeepsie, NY, who made a beautiful 749 squat in a quick descent and recovery style. Colin Rhodes has built up a spectacular arch in the bench press, but unfortunately was not able to get any passed, except his opener, and then he passed out unconscious on his final deadlift try. SLOW POWERLIFTERS

FAST POWERLIFTERS WIN!

Since 1990 when I introduced Creatine Monohydrate, I've focused on new technologies to help make powerlifters and other speed-strength athletes better. The past five years of research have paid off. I've created new innovations that will help you build velocity traits such as starting strength, acceleration, and maximal strength. You've seen nothing like them before!

Every serious powerlifter has to build the velocity traits to win, and most bodybuilding supplements just don't have what it takes! They get you bulky at the expense of explosiveness. Not a good thing going into competition. And some are just plain illegal in tested meets!

Listen to what some elite powerlifters have to say about VELOCITY:

- Mike Ferrantelli (4-time Drug Free National Championships, 3-time Drug Free World Championships, and has broken 21 National and Drug Free Records)

"VELOCITY supplements work for me. I won't train without them!"

- Pat Casper

"Ordinary bodybuilding supplements just don't compare to VELOCITY!"

INTERVIEW

Personal dialogue between PL USA Magazine and the Sport's Greatest Names.

LM: Alright Wade, how about some background information about yourself?

WH: My name is Wade Hooper, I am 29 years old. I am a strength coach at West Ouachita High School in West Monroe, Louisiana. I am single and have been competing for 11 years and lifting for 17 years.

LM: How did you get involved in the sport of Powerlifting?

WH: I got involved in high school. It was popular in the rival high schools around the area and I was one of two members of our school's powerlifting team.

LM: Did you play any sports in high school?

WH: I played football and swam. My dad was a swim coach.

LM: How long have you been a strength coach?

WH: About 4 years now.

LM: What records do you currently have or have had in the past?

WH: I formerly held the IPF Men's open world squat record at 672 lbs., and still hold the Junior world record of 644 lbs at 148. I have won 2 USPF National championships and 3 USAPL National Championships. I have won an open (1996) and junior (1992) world championship. My biggest accomplishment in the sport to date was the 1996 worlds in Salzburg, Austria.

LM: What kind of experience has it been competing on a US team going to the worlds as opposed to competing individually?

WH: It is different every year as the feel of the team changes because you have one or two new members every year. It is a lot more fun being a part of the U.S. team, as opposed to lifting individually. This will be the 6th U.S. team that I have had the honor to be a part of, and although the faces have changed somewhat over the years, the goal of the team is the same - bring home the team title.

LM: Do you personally feel that when we send a team to the worlds we should send our individual national champions or should we field a team that has the best chance to win us a world championship?

WH: Well, being a coach and a lifter I can see two different scenarios. As a coach, you want to field the best possible team, however it falls. If you have 2 great lifters in one weight class, then those two go and you eliminate the weak link from the nationals. This will give the team a better chance

as interviewed for PL USA by Larry Miller

Wade was re-instated in time to lift at the USAPL Men's Nationals.

for more team points. On the other hand, I wouldn't want to be the National Champion that was removed from the team and left behind. There really is no good answer. I don't think we're at a level of significant depth that we can pick and choose outside of our national champions.

LM: Why do you think the Europeans are ahead of us?

WH: It is probably due to technique and government support. One thing I have noticed is that technically they are very sound. It is probably due to their Olympic lifting background. Once the Iron Curtain went down there were a great number of lifters that switched from Olympic lifting to powerlifting. There is also an issue of drugs and we don't know how prevalent it is but I don't think we will ever be able to get rid of it.

LM: Who are some of the lifters you have come to admire and respect over the years?

WH: There are quite a few. Dan Austin has been the one that I grew up reading about since he was in my weight class. I have had the pleasure of being on a world team with Dan on a couple occasions. Ed Coan is another lifter I have a lot of respect for. His lifting is way beyond his time. Ed has helped me greatly over the last couple of years with my training. My workout partner Jeff Douglas is one of the guys I respect the most. He and I have been training partners for the last 8 years, and Jeff has played a big role in my personal success as a lifter.

LM: What remaining goals do you have?

WH: I would like to win another world title and after that I am not sure. Maybe win a little bit more money at the WPO and go back and compete at the Mountaineer Cup.

LM: What equipment do you use?

WH: For squatting and deadlifting, I use the Centurian from Titan. For benching, I use the Crain Mega Power Bench shirt. I also use the Inzer and am playing around with both to see which is the best for me.

LM: Since you brought up the point about making money, let's discuss whether or not amateur athletes should be allowed to make money. We spent quite a bit of time trying to reinstate you and the other two lifters who won money at the WPO meet in Florida.

WH: I really think that this was one of those situations that could make or break an organization. I am still trying to figure out the difference between an amateur and professional in today's world. Times have changed and I think that USA Powerlifting finally realized it. I think that USAPL will be making some changes in the right direction. I would like to take this opportunity to thank you, Larry, and all of the NGB members who stood up and supported Tony Caprari, Beau Moore and myself on this issue.

LM: Was it your decision to lift at those meets based on some of our athletes going to Sweden and competing for prize money?

WH: Yes, based on the fact that some of our lifters had recently competed for and won prize money, I assumed that I could do the same. I didn't see it as an issue and I had no idea it was addressed in our by-laws.

LM: I imagine it was quite an experience for you to go through the system and have the decision reversed. WH: No one really wins in this situation. It had to be played out. At least now the members have more opportunity to offset their expenses in this sport as a result of this issue.

LM: Were you happy with the final result?

WH: Yes, of course, I was allowed to lift.

LM: What type of training program are you on?

WH: I train 4 days a week: Sunday - Squat and legs; Tuesday - Bench; Thursday - Deadlift and Friday - Light Bench and Triceps.

LM: What type of diet do you follow and what supplements do you take?

WH: Well, moving up to the 165s has really spoiled me on dieting. I don't have to watch what I eat right now. However, I still try to keep my protein intake to about 120-150 grams/day. I would say that my nutritional breakdown is 50-30-20, carbs, protein and fats. As far as supplements are concerned, Quest Nutrition supplies me with products that best suit my nutritional needs. I take Quest Creatine, Synergy, Whey protein and pyruvate.

LM: What are your views on lifters taking steroids and how do you think we can improve our drug testing?

WH: That would depend on what organization the lifter is competing in. I lift in organization(s) that do have rules against steroid use - the USA PL and IPF. However, that does not stop lifters from competing in the USA PL or the IPF and being loaded. It is kind of hard to test a lifter once or twice a year and catching them. If they know when and where they will be tested. OMT is the only way to catch these lifters breaking the rules. I also think that every lifter should have a chance at getting tested throughout the year, not just the national championships.

LM: What are your views on the triple ply suits and shirts? Do you think these things are making a mockery of our sport?

WH: Last I checked, this was a strength sport. The goal is for the individual to lift as much weight as they can on their own and not have the equipment do it for them. I like equipment and think that equipment should be a part of the sport for safety considerations. However, when you wear equipment that literally does the work for you, what have you accomplished? With equipment, there comes a point that we must say, enough is enough. I personally think that single ply needs to be the standard in all organizations.

LM: Can you think of any funny powerlifting situations that you've encountered over the years?

WH: I have told this story plenty of times, but it still remains the highlight of my funniest and most embarrassing moments in this sport. This story dates back to when I was lifting for the Louisiana Tech Powerlifting Team. I was doing a squat exhibition for the team during half-time of the Lady Techsters play-off game. Well, I did more than exhibit proper technique on the squat that day. Standing at half court, my squat suit blew out on my third rep. I was only wearing a jock and had to walk off from center court, barefoot all of myself, literally.

LM: Are there any final comments you would like to make Wade?

WH: I would like to personally thank Dr. Talton for all his help and support over the years. I could never forget my training partners Jeff Douglas, Keith Taylor, Jackie, and Char Gahagan. Without their help, I could never have come close to the level I am at today. I also have to give credit to my girlfriend Kim, who keeps calm and focused at meets.

On May 20, 2000 Wade Hooper competed in the WPO Championships in Daytona Beach, Florida. Wade took home with him $7,000.00 for his outstanding performance. Immediately following, there was a great deal of discussion as to whether or not Wade had violated his amateur status as a member of USA PL. At the time Wade's logic was that two fellow USA PL lifters, Brad Gillingham and Sean Culnan had competed for prize money in Sweden. Wade concluded that it would be all right for him to do the same. Because of the controversy going around on the internet, the EC of USA PL addressed the situation. They voted 6-0 to suspend Wade per some specific sections of our By-laws. I think that, as a whole, the EC did not want to suspend Wade. Current practices allow a vast majority of Olympic athletes to make money. I called Wade and asked him if he needed any help. Wade indicated that he would take whatever help he could get. I contacted a few members of the Executive Committee. I wanted to know if we were supposed to be following USOC guidelines. One member thought we were to be following the USOC guidelines for drug testing only. Having been a past EC member, I was uncertain as to what we were supposed to be doing so I contacted my friend Andrea Sortwell past Secretary/Treasurer of USA PL. Andrea keeps everything on file and has a great memory. Andrea referred me to our March 1st, 1997 meeting in Chicago where by we were to attempt some sort of merger with the USPF. Although the merger did not go through, we adopted a number of changes. Motion #13 which passed by a vote of 27-0, was to authorize our Law and Legislative Committee to adopt the USOC definitions and to bring our By-Laws into conformity with those of the USOC. This was never done. After reviewing our By-laws very carefully, I concluded that we were directed by our By-laws and the March 1st motion to follow USOC guidelines. I therefore contacted two higher-ups within the USOC. Both were surprised that we did not allow our athletes to win money. They also referred me to the USOC constitution, By-laws and the Ted Stevens Amateur Act. From what was told to me by the USOC and from what I read, our National organization could not be more restrictive than that of the international organization regarding membership. Therefore, if the IPF was not penalizing their athletes for winning money, USA PL would have to follow their lead. This was the path Wade decided to take. Upon a close review of our own By-Laws, Wade and I noticed a number of inconsistencies. One was to the reference of our athletes being members. At the time of the WPO meet, Wade was not a member of USA PL. I felt that the section of our By-laws which the EC used to suspend Wade would potentially penalize athletes that received free equipment from some of the equipment and clothing manufacturers. In all sincerity, I felt that had our Law and Legislative Committee followed through in March of 1997, we could have avoided this whole mess. I also felt that the athlete should not be penalized due to the organization not following through. Unfortunately this happens and as a past EC member, I am as guilty as anyone else. It is difficult to keep track of every motion that was ever passed within our organization. At the USA PL Nationals this past July when Wade was reinstated, current Law and Legislative Committee chairman, Lucian Gillis stood up and took the blame. I don't think that Lucian was the chair of that committee in March of 1997, but since our current By-Laws had addressed the issue of following USOC guidelines Lucian indicated that he was unaware of an urgent need to change our laws. I have a great deal of respect for Lucian to get up and say what he did since he was putting Wade's interests ahead of his own.

I was hoping that the EC would review their decision based on the information that Wade and I had sent to them prior to our July NGB meeting. I did not feel that we would be able to change any By-laws but only reverse the decision of the EC. As per our By-laws, the EC suspended the meeting so that they could hold a special meeting at which time they arrived at a solution that would allow Wade and the two other lifters, Beau Moore and Tony Caprari to compete for 2 months until they could review if the IPF was officially allowing its athletes to compete for money.

I think that there are a few morals to this story. One, before we suspend an athlete, the situation should be very thoroughly investigated. A great majority of our athletes and many members of our EC do not know every rule as outlined within our By-laws. If we have rules that will jeopardize an athlete's ability to compete, then we must be sure to inform the athlete, whether it be via our miniature rule book or a newsletter or some other means. We also need to get with the times. By bringing prize money into the sport, we may attract more athletes and sponsors. The only negative would be that it might attract more drug use.

It was nice to see Wade compete at the Nationals. He is a great lifter and just as nice an individual.

I was the first to arrive in Buenos Aires, and expected to check out the local sites on my own. On the way to the elevator I heard two familiar voices ... Kirk Karwoski and Sioux-z Hartwig. Let the games begin! We perused the area, witnessed a mugging, and waited for the rest of Team USA to arrive. After two days of silliness with these two, most of the rest of the team arrived on the bus that took us to Pinamar, a South Atlantic beach resort, popular in the summer months. Our May stay there was during the Southern Hemisphere's fall, leaving the area quite unpopulated. Sioux-z, Kirk, Camille, and Sandy took advantage of beach 4-wheeling, while other lifters enjoyed horseback riding and shopping. Pinamar is approximately 320 km. south of Buenos Aires, but it was the shortest 5 hour bus ride in history. Many lifters from other countries were also aboard and it was a great time to catch up with old friends. Vladimir Bogachev was gracious enough to pop in some Russian competitions on the video. Was this a ploy to psyche us out? We looked, but were unable to decode the secret to their success. A date will soon be set for a Russian Friendship Invitational, and tips from these excellent athletes will surely be worth the trip.

Check in at the lovely Hotel Algeciras was assisted immensely by Team USA's physician, Camille D'Amato. She served as translator and did an excellent job taking care of not only our linguistic needs, but also everyone's aches & pains, multiple weigh-ins, photos, etc. Camille is training hard and has entered her first meet! She has hopes to eventually enter the international arena, but, if she came with us as a competitor, who would take care of me?

Opening ceremonies had Sandy Mobley and I standing up for the United States along with representatives from 20 other countries. 81 women were entered, and though these numbers were a little low for the IPF, they far surpassed any other "World Championship". That fact, combined with stricter drug testing, and firm rules is the reason the IPF exemplifies World competition.

44 kilos - lifting began Thursday with Svetlana Tesleva of Russia completely prevailing with a huge 425 kg., 10 x bodyweight total, easily breaking World Records in the bench press and deadlift along the way. Her World Record 95 kilo bench was so easy that she will definitely break it again in the near future. Chun-Ju Chen of Chinese Taipei attained the silver with a successful 8/8 performance to total 385. Chen's squat and deadlift are close to Tesleva, however, her subordinate bench press inflicted a 40 kilo deficit in her total. Finland's Vuokko

Viitala claimed the bronze with 365, attempting a World Masters Record on her third deadlift to no avail. Junko Kitamura of Japan slightly increased her total from last year's championships to keep her fourth place. Cathy Solan was the first US lifter and did us proud, going 7/9, and adding 5 kilos to last year's total. Her faithful coach, Iain Burgess, was there to guide Cathy and give the rest of the team a hand. Maria Teran, of Venezuela, was 6th with a new best in the deadlift of 122.5. Valeria Vincenti, the native Argentinean, finished 7th with 225.

48 kilos - Returning Multi-World Champion, Elena Yamskikh of Russia was flawless. With strength to spare she went 9/9 with lifts of 155, 97.5, and 175 for a World Record 427.5 kilo total. Elena also serves as translator for the Russian team, and she is a beloved international friend.

Raija Koskinen of Finland held her second place status finishing 4/9 with 162.5, 82.5, and 155. Raija completed all three squats and deadlifts, but was turned down by the referees for technical errors. When squatting, she looks directly at the ground and has quite a narrow stance. You can't argue with a World Record holder though. If all of Raija's attempts were successful, she would have been nipping at Elena's heels. Thanks to Raija for holding the bus back to Buenos Aires for our team! Without her we might all still be in South America. Bronze was awarded to Chinese Taipei's Hsin-Yi Chou, who went 6/8 with 365 and Christine Guingal of France followed for fourth with 140, 62.5, and 147.5 to finish with 350. Sioux-z Hartwig of the USA finished close behind in 5th, missing several attempts that would have boosted her placing. She vowed to use this as fuel for the upcoming U.S. Nationals.

Sioux-z Hartwig ... (by Hartwig)

52 kilos - Ludmilla Starova of the Ukraine was the only non-Russian to stand atop the podium. (We all know the Russian anthem by heart!) This victory was the closest of the contest as she and the Russian Irina Ayugina both totaled 450 with Starova winning on bodyweight. Ayugina was the stronger squatter by 12.5 kilos and though she lagged a little in the bench, she was still the leader at subtotal. Bronze was taken by Swedish Riita Liimatainen who made only 1 squat and 1 deadlift, ending with 407.5. Mervi Sirkia of Finland and Bernadette Taillard of France battled for 4th and 5th places with 385 and 382.5, respectively. Stephanie Cornette of France ended just behind making all 9 attempts for 380. The young Venezuelan, Yolimar Cobos, rounded out the class finishing 7th with 355. The USA again did not have an entry in this class. It would help if one of our strong 52 kilo lifters could join us.

56 kilos - This class hosted a new Russian Champion, Valentina Nelubova, as Oksana Belova was absent. Only Sandra Korte and Sandy Mobley were repeat entries from last year. Nelubova sailed to an 8/9, 77.5 kilo victory, breaking World Records in the bench press on her 2nd and 3rd attempts with 128 and 132.5! This tremendous press added to a 180 squat and 175 deadlift lead to her 487.5 winning total. The next three places changed hands many times as the USA, Germany, and Chinese Taipei battled it out. Sandra Korte of Germany concluded her performance with 160, 77.5, and 172.5 for 410 to increase her placing from last year's 7th to this year's silver. Chinese Taipei's Shu-Ting Lin ended close behind with a 4/9 performance for bronze with 405 and Sandy Mobley of the USA was breathing down her neck with 402.5. Sandy was in second at subtotal and her last deadlift would have secured silver. Unfortunately, she twisted her back on her squats and has been fighting off lower back problems for most of her training cycle. Sandy's the quiet one on the team, who knows everything. If Sandy ever writes this article I'm getting a room at the other end of the hotel! Japan's Kumi Kobayashi, with the 2nd heaviest bench of the class at 110, closed with 397.5 for 5th.

60 kilos - Beautiful Irina Abramova powered through 2 World Squat Records to capture this class with 220, 110, and 212.5 for 542.5. Irina's focus didn't falter even after a sizable misload on one of her WR attempts. If she ever decides to retire from powerlifting she could definitely make some money selling abdominal training advice. This woman has a serious midsection! Chinese Taipei's Hsiao-Li Hsu and Germany's Birgit Fischer fought for silver to the last pull. Hsu was able to come back and make her missed 182.5 second attempt to win by 12.5 kilos. Fourth place Paivi Haapoja (Finland) and fifth place Hilda Dural (Venezuela) had a similar fight to the end, closing with 437.5, and 430 respectively. America's Ellen Stein achieved 6th with a personal best 9/9 performance to end with 155, 85, 182.5, for 422.5 breaking Master National Records in the bench, deadlift, and total. Ellen was a big help while the team got rack heights. She also ebulliently helped the IPF staff with weigh-ins. I think Ellen also broke an unofficial record for most suits checked in at an IPF contest. In seventh was Dutch Master lifter Aly Keizer who ended 8/9 with 410. Argentinean Monica Coronel finished 8th after a close call in the squats making only her third. Canadian travelmate to the US team, Kim Dennis, who had some trouble making weight and in the squat and bench, rounded out the class.

67.5 kilos - This class was host of the contest's Champion of Champions, Marina Kudinova, of Russia. Marina finished with an amazing 622 Wilks points and an outstanding 9/9 performance. Kudinova squatted World Records on both her second and third attempts with 237.5 and 242.5, benched 140, and pulled 212.5 to close with a huge 605. Ukrainian Lesia Gumińska earned silver with 565. Argentina's most powerful female, quiet Irene Frangi, captured bronze for her home crowd going 8/9 with 222.5, 112.5, and 212.5 for 547.5. This moved her up a placing from last year. Inger Blikra of Norway also moved up a placing, adding to her total to finish 4th with 512.5. Tied with the same total, but with a heavier bodyweight by .1 kilo was 5th place Cecile Jamin of France. Sixth place went to Kazakhstan's Valida Iskandarova who finished close with 500. America's entry in this class was a last minute no show due to passport and travel difficulties.

75 kilos - Last year's gold medalist Elena Zhukova was nowhere to be found, leaving the door open for Russia's Tatyana Puzanova to claim victory with 237.5, 130, and 220 for 587.5. Next to her was Germany's Daniella Sell who simultaneously moved down a weight class and added 72.5 kilos to her total. After difficulty with the squats, Daniella went on to press a World Record bench on her second and third attempts to achieve 148. While warming up for the pull, her deadlift suit was stolen. She still managed a disappointing 227.5 to finish with a close second of 575. Bronze was battled for by the seasoned competitor Anne Stiklestad of Norway and Chinese Taipei junior Chiu-Hua Hsieh. Hsieh was the victor making one more attempt than the Norwegian going 6/9 for 547.5. Anne's performance was hindered by a ruptured disc in her back contributing to a 5/9 day and fourth with 535. Chinese Taipei also claimed 5th place in this class when the still younger Hui-Chi Chen ended with 465. Two Holland teammates, Mariet Spronk and Joke VanderMuelen took 6th and 7th place with 430 and 407.5. Argentina's Mariela Giminez trailed for eighth with 390.

82.5 kilos - This class was home to some very powerful females. Last year's 75 kilo silver medalist, Anja Weizkowiak of Germany, moved into the 82.5s and added 20 kilos to her total, but could not overpower Russia's Elena Ignatenkova. Both lifters were 9/9. Elena broke World Records on her second and third attempt squats with 245 and 252.5 then went on to press 142.5 and pull 235 for an astounding 630. Anja, though the stronger deadlifter with 245, squatted 235, and benched 130 for 610. Viktoria Posmitna of the Ukraine attained third with 532.5 and was followed by a light Linda Jo Belsito of the USA. Linda had a perfect day making all 9 attempts for 450. At our Nationals Linda was struggling with the passing of her family dog. Strangely enough, during warmups the mirror image of her pooch came in to the venue. Could this have been an omen? The Masters Worlds were held in Argentina in 1998. Many native lifters were pleased to see both Linda and Ellen return for this competition. Monique Hartle of Indiana/Canada ended fifth with 385.

90 kilos - Russian newcomer Irina Lugovaya's 9/9 performance dominated the class with a squat of 245, World Record bench of 163, and deadlift of 240 to end with a huge 647.5 kilo total, the most weight lifted by any woman in the entire contest. I, Leslie Look, of the USA took silver going 8/9, losing my grip on my last DL of 217.5 to end with 540. Although I took second in the class it must be mentioned that I was the gold medalist in the "phase ten" championship. We heavy girls have to keep ourselves out of trouble somehow during the lightweight days! Holy Ned, if you've never seen 5 heavyweight, overly competitive, anxious lifters play cards before a competition - it's a trip! I have to say, I really made out! The bronze medal was awarded to young Chia-Hui Tsai of Chinese Taipei who finished with 520. This strong junior lifter, like many other Taipei lifters, has an amazing arch and superior bench pressing power. She was credited with her opener of 120, and was called twice for insufficient pause and uneven extension with 127.5. In 4th place was new Masters superstar Harriet Hall. Harriet cleaned up with Masters World Records in the bench, deadlift, and total with lifts of 180, 125, and 207.5 for 512.5. One more successful squat attempt would have earned Harriet World Records across the board. Not bad for her first international competition! Argentina's Angela Martinez took 5th place for her home country with lifts of 207.5, 115, and 187.5

The first APF Seniors of the new millennium was held in the beautiful state of Michigan, June 10-11 at the Van Dyke Park Hotel & Conference Center, in Warren. Big Dan Defelice of the famous Motor City Barbell Club in Roseville directed this year's event. I must take off my hat to Dan who left no stone unturned to make this event a smashing success. With such great promoters as Larry Pacifico, Mark Chaillet and Gary Benford as Dan's role models for excellence of execution he left no doubt in my mind that this competition was far and away the best Seniors I've ever seen. The warmup area was spacious and within a few steps of the lifting area. An overhead projector kept the audience informed. A sign indicating both kilos and pounds made the weight on the bar instantly recognizable. I got all the computerized result printouts following each day's lifting, thanks to Jim Hinze, the computer man of Motor City Barbell. Meet programs were free, listing all contestants with their age and hometown and a complete list of APF and WPC Men and Women's records. Big, carpeted, fit-together boxes comprised the victory platform. There were 200 unique meet T-shirts moderately priced at 15 bucks. They sold completely out at the close of the last day's lifting. The equipment looked new and of a superior quality. Ivanka weights were used, the obvious choice of champions in PL worldwide. Dan served as emcee for the meet and did a splendid job of keeping the crowd responsive. Theme music from the popular pro-wrestling superstars fired up the lifters and crowd alike in this top notch affair.

The ladies took center stage on Sunday morning, but I think it only proper to cover them first. There was a light turnout, 11, but they were the cream of the crop. 105 - Lynne Barlow, 40, of Turner, NE

APF Senior Nationals Pt. I

as told to Powerlifting USA by Herb Glossbrenner

came in at 104.2 lbs. She sliced through her attempts like a knife through hot butter. On a final SQ she executed a picture perfect 155.5 kg., which topped the record of Doris Simmons (341.7) set way back on July 28, 1990. Following a 171 BP opener, Lynne went straight for that record also, up to 187. Up it came, with hardly a waver. Denied by the judges 2-1, it was an unpopular decision with husband/coach Russ Barlow and others. On a repeat, a noticeable dip in the upward trajectory nullified the lift also. In the DL, Barlow put up 292, then 319, before missing her final try at 330. Her TOT of 833.3 indicates she MIGHT BE tiny, but she's MIGHTY!

At 123, the defending champ from last year was Nance Avigliano, 43, from Burbank, CA. Avigliano looked hard and muscular. An untimely pec tear and surgery had kept her from a deserved World title last year in Calgary. You'd never have known that from the way she lifted here. In the lighter weight categories with the rigors of making weight, etc., one usually improves lifts by small measures. Someone forgot to tell this to Nance. In order she ticked off all three SQs. As opposed to her 325 best from last year, Nance hit 341, 358, and finally a deep 374. This final lift was a new WPC Masters 40-44 World Record erasing the long standing lift set by Diane Frantz nearly two decades ago. She opened with a PR BP - 171 - and missed her groove. After an easy repeat, she topped that off with a great 182 - 2W - a lift she had to fight hard to complete. No slacking off in the DL for her. She opened with 363. Next up - 396 - with effort, a PR by 16. This boosted her TOT to a sky high 942, a full hundred more than last year. The result surpassed the former 40-44 WPC World Masters TOT record of 937 established by Diane Frantz way back on Mar. 28, 1981. She took a stab at a 402 DL, but her hips came up - no lift. She's aiming to bust the one thousand pound barrier at the Worlds.

132 - Amy Weisberger, 35, Columbus, OH, came in as the favorite, having moved up to this category. Earlier this year she did 450 280 450 1180, the highest TOT in the World All-Time in any organization for women at bantamweight. Shortly thereafter she posted a whopping 292 bench press @ 123. Amy let her weight creep too high. As a guest in April at the CA APF State Meet she popped a whopping 303 BP @ 141. You can't maintain a razor's edge indefinitely. Yo-yo'ing her weight took its toll. Here, her shirt didn't fit right, and she forgot her backup. Following a 413 SQ she'd stayed down attempting to dunk a PR 452. Then her BP problems surfaced. Her 264 went up, but it was uneven and was rejected. Subsequent increases were also out of sync. Even the best can have a bad day. No big deal for the 7 time WPC World Champ who will rise to greater accomplishments in the future. Amy's elimination opened the door for two hopefuls. Defending champ Vanessa Ware from Hilliard, OH had the feisty Melanie Diamond, 40, from Oceanside, NY, to contend with. Ware was expected to retain her title but ran into a SQ dilemma. Diamond took a huge early lead. Melanie nailed 386, then 402, before missing her 418 lb. last lift. Ware opened with a super conservative 330 and smoked it. Vanessa went to 374 which drew 3R due to a technicality. Confident of her abilities, Ware took 402 for her final lift. She appeared to be plenty deep, but the lift was denied because during the descent, she double dipped. Vanessa could only trim the deficit 11 (from 72 to 61) by outbenchng Diamond 237 to 226. Both were equal in the DL, doing 402 each. Diamond found 424 to be too much, while Ware's try with 429 went nowhere. It was an upset win for Melanie 1030 TOT to 970 for Ware.

148 - This class was a three way catfight. Every one of the terrific trio had won National or World Titles previously, but there was absolutely no doubt who was Queen of Queens. Mariah Liggett had a string of victories so extensive you had to research a couple of decades to uncover them all. Mariah took a year off from Seniors action last year and came in with 10 National titles. She's the "winningest" women's world champ in the WPC ever, with 13, and was favored to regain the title she'd forfeited, by her absence, last year to Nancy Dangerfield, 43, from St. Charles, IL. The other foe was Mary Ellen Jerumbo (formerly Warman), 43, from El Paso, TX. Mary, whose other forte is bodybuilding, was bigger, badder, buffer, and tougher than ever. All 3 lifters possessed one outstanding lift. For Mary it's the SQ (WR holder with 529 @ 132). Liggett has no peers when it comes to pushing prowess. Nancy has a bionic back, capable of an astounding pull (WR at 524.71). With husband Terry back on his feet again, Nancy had the time to get into top shape this year. She made all three SQs with power to spare: 391, 424, and finally a great 446 (3W). Liggett, with her usual calm approach began at 441, but got reds for depth. She was annoyed and went up to 474 - good lift. Jerumbo worked herself into frenzied intensity and put all her SQs deep in the hole and roared up like a runaway freight train: 468, 496, and finally a perfect 507. Liggett tried this same weight, but couldn't recover from her wide stance. Mary looked so strong I suggested she give the WR a go. On a 4th attempt she attacked 524.7 to eclipse Liggett's mark by one half kilo. Not to be this day, but it's a done deal next time with more training preparation. Dangerfield continued her run, elevating 3 BPs: 204, 220, then 226. Jerumbo, with a loose shirt and technique, secured 214 and 226 on brute strength alone. She failed inexplicably with 237. With some specialization and a custom fitted Inzer EHDHP double ply, she's capable of a 275 right now. Liggett put distance between herself and the others, pressing powerfully 275, 292 and she almost had a PR 303. Both Jerumbo and Liggett struggled in the DL. All the better for Nancy. Mariah managed 424, a 2nd round lift. 435 barely budged. Jerumbo got 396, then 418, but couldn't get 435. She'd done 450 a week before in practice to see where she was at. The winner looked to be Liggett who finished with an 1190 TOT. Jerumbo was done at 1151 - would that be 2nd or 3rd? Nancy assured herself a certain 3rd place with her 457 opener (1129). Next she went to 501, an incredible lift. It came up as easy as pie - 2W. One lift remained. Dangerfield needed 523 for victory, but to her the WR was all that really mattered. She gambled on a phenomenal 529. She gave it the works, but the powerful clutch of gravity kept it grounded. Here's an anomaly. Jerumbo finished 3rd and didn't make the World Team. However, because she was 10 lbs. lighter than her competitors (138.66) she ended up winning the Women's Outstanding Lifter award according to the Reshel formula.

165 - Perennial queenpin Stephanie VanDeweghe was missing in action due to injury. This left two returnees from last year to decide who the new champion might be. Joyce Tacktil, 45, out of Oceanside, NY was 3rd last year (937 TOT), but was now vastly improved thanks to her coach Chris Taylor. Julie Scanlon, 24, of Glen Burnie, MD was runner-up last year and now honed in on the title. Tacktil dunked 374 on a 2nd attempt. She also got all 3 benches, up to a fine 248. Joyce hoisted her 402 2nd try DL for 1025. Scanlon ran away with the win, but got only her SQ and DL openers, 452 and 429. She upped her personal best BP on her final try - 308 - for 1190 and succession to Stephanie's crown.

Krista Ford of Decatur, GA was the only 181 entrant this year. With Julie Havelka absent Krista lifted conservatively. She made a nice 474 SQ, in perfect form, did a 226 BP as a formality, and raised her 457 2nd attempt DL to accumulate an 1157 TOT - small potatoes for her. Foremost on her mind these days is securing a berth on the USA Women's Olympic Bobsled team for 2002. Her goal is to become the first ever African-American woman to win an Olympic gold medal in bobsledding. Krista just signed a contract with Jackie Joyner Kersee's sports agency - Elite International Sports Marketing & Manufacturing Co. Maybe we'll see a Krista Ford action figure out there in the future.

As a footnote, I'm told that 114 U.S. and World Champ Kim Sommers is retired. I was dismayed that top 181-198 lifter from Grand Rapids - Lynn Boshoven - did not show up in her home state to go for a National Title that she's capable of winning.

Last year in Daytona Beach they pulled in 48 entries in the Men's division. This year there were but 40, and but one solitary entry in the first 4 bodyweight categories. That is truly sad. Tim Judge, 41, from Oak Harbor, OH shows up and keeps coming back. Because of this, he captured his third straight 148 lb. title. For the 3rd year in a row, he had only his own will and determination as an incentive, but the result is Tim's gain and everyone else's loss. Still, he put out his best ever performance: SQ - 507 on a 3rd - a successful repeat of a missed 2nd. He pressed up 325, and 358, with a near miss at PR 369 try. Tim DLed 490 on his 2nd try - TOT 1356 - and called it a day.

The 165 lb. class was loaded this year as opposed to two entries last year. With little previous competition, Angelo Berardinelli has been less than inspired since the spectacular 1865 TOT he achieved in Feb. 1998. When the occasion arises, Angelo will rise to the challenge, like early this year when he unleashed a monster 490 BP. He was able to easily capture his 5th Seniors title here without needing to put up a remarkable performance. Angelo opened easily with 672 in his ultra-wide style. Two tries with 722 pinned him. His main objective was to win and qualify for another World appearance. His 424 BP opener was explosive. He got a big increase to 474 up, but it was crooked at lockout. He DLed 551, then 589 precisely, but missed a 606 attempt - TOT 1681. The return of Joey Almodovar, 34, Oceanside, NY, may provide the motivation that Angelo has been lacking. Joey has been sidelined the past two years, the result of a debilitating auto accident. He still has the heart and gets very serious when he mounts the platform. He's shredded to the max, and apparently was born lacking any fat cells in his body. He SQ'd 600 to begin, then double pumped his 633 and had to repeat it for a good lift. He was flawless in the BP posting a great PR 402 final try. In the DL, he was brilliant also - 584, then 611, though he did not complete his potshot at 628 - TOT 1647 - very good for the first pitstop on his comeback trail. He's on the USA World team now and could be much improved come November. Tom Lavelle, 33, from Cleveland, OH, had a splendid day, finishing 3rd. His 606 SQ was deep and technically excellent. Tom looked great in the BP, popping a great 429, followed by a 441. His 452 was a hard fought gut buster. Unfortunately, Tom moved a foot, cancelling what was otherwise a great effort. No misses in the DL, and his final lift 562 gave him a 6-9 day and a 1609 TOT for the bronze! Snapping right at Tom's heels was newcomer Rich Salvagni, 22, from Goshen, IN. He had wily veteran Jon Smoker (a Hoosier original) in his corner coaching. Rich had a bit of skittishness in his first Seniors, taking a step before the signal on his 606 opener SQ. His repeat was a 2W success. Then he went up to 633 - a miss outright. In the BP - his specialty - he did 407 strongly, followed by a 435 miss then make. Rich pulled 556 with no problem, but 584 failed to yield. Bringing up the flanks were John Wood, 35, from E. China, MI in 4th. Newcomer Chad Rutledge, 22, from Geneva, OH was followed by 45 year old Lamar Gant lookalike (facially) Art Little of Detroit. Wood chastised his own performance, but did well for the shape he was in, hitting 7-9. Rutledge settled down after two SQ misses to make a 3W beautiful 589 3rd lift. He tagged 330 in BP and nearly pulled 611 in the DL, but it got too far out front - TOT 1482. Art Little had a truly horrendous day with 1383. He'd done a hundred more than that last year.

The 181s had but three contestants. Fabian Wambgans forfeited the bronze medal early. The 52 year old from Dearborn, MI was unable to satisfy the judges on his 3 tries to subdue a 633 SQ and was gone. Training partner Paul Urchik protested the call, but it fell on deaf ears. Most 52 year olds couldn't roll that barbell across the platform, let alone squat with it. The silver and gold were still there for the taking. Joe Dougherty, 28, from Niagara Falls, NY, had an overwhelming foe to contend with - Arnold Coleman, 35, a personal trainer and genetic marvel from Blacklick, OH. Coleman is the 5th best 181er in US History with lifts officially done 10 AUG 1996 of 782 SQ, 523 BP and 677 DL for 1962. Arnold makes a national appearance only when the notion strikes him. He trained only three weeks on the powerlifts for this meet - yes, he's just that good. Feeling his way into it, his 650 opener was a bit shallow, but he sank it easily on a 2nd. Then, he did 705 just as effortlessly but it was ruled slightly high. In the BP, he blasted 501, then 512 after a warmup of 452. He raised 600 and 650 DLs so easily it was almost

The APF Nationals was held May 20-21 in a large facility donated by the city of Aurora, IL. The equipment utilized had seen a lot of years of use. The bench used for the competition had a large lip on the rack supports. Since there was no platform built into the bench, it required someone tall or one possessing powerful trapezius muscles to lift the bar up and out over the lip. On a good note the bench surface was maximum width and hard, which gave solid support. As far as the press signals went no one was individually discriminated against - EVERYONE GOT A TWO TO THREE SECOND PAUSE on the chest before receiving the signal. I'm talking about after the bar is motionless. This continued up to the last session of the last day. By that time everyone was bitching so vehemently about this that a conference among the officials was held and judging became more normalized. I'm a firm believer in adherence to the rules, however it is possible to be too strict and look for the slightest possible minuscule violation. The SQ judging was super strict, but consistent and fair. I heard little complaining about this. The deadlift judging was very sloppy in some instances, while in other cases a gut busting good lift that should have passed wasn't. My vote for the best head judge for the BP in the meet was Maris Sternberg who gives signals the way they should be. The weigh-in times were strictly adhered to with no exceptions. Sunday lifters weighed at the facility. Everyone stood in a long line for a long time, waiting their turn.

Co-meet directors Jim Johnston and Gary Baum were friendly and cooperative to all the lifters. They had a nice weightboard with flip cards designating the current amount on the bar in both kilos and lbs., but no scoreboard or overhead projector. There were 159 participants competing, and I counted only four bumbouts.

TEENS - only two lifters in the 13-15 teen division. Matt Schiff made huge jumps in his DL, but got them all (468) for 1008 & 1st @ 165. Russ Flanders went 8/9 to win at 220. In the 16-17 Brandon Matthews captured the 148 title unopposed. Ben Flanders, bro to Russ, got 2nd place. After flubbing his SQ opener, Eric Stone made no more errors - 1146 TOT. His 181 rival Kyle Kildow was 22 behind him going into the DL, but pulled out the win with a 462 DL for a 1157 TOT. Ed Simonic token lifted for 3rd this class. Robert Nosek had his way at 148 in the 18-19 bracket - leading to a fine 1113 TOT, a result of his 441 DL pull. From the get go it appeared to be a good matchup between Andrew Huey and Mike Jovanovic at 181. Michael, a Burbank High School Senior, got off to a rocky start, making a SQ 407 opener, but missing two tries at 429 on balance. Huey had the lead, but it evaporated. Arched like a bow, Mike distanced himself with a big 341 BP, a struggle to complete. With an 88 lb. lead, he watched Huey finish the day with a 468 pull for an 1151 TOT. Mike sealed the deal with his 501 opener and went on to complete a tough 2nd attempt PR of 529. Justin Fitz copped the 220s with huge DL increases - all good - 501, 562, and finally 600 for a TOT of 1499. An unfortunate knee injury in the SQ kept James Carroll from collecting gold. Distinguished by his red dyed Mohawk hairstyle, he was unable to continue when the spotters let him get crushed. Patrick Sparks was recipient of the best Teenage Lifter award. At 275 he SQ'd a big 699 and tried 738 to no avail. Following a big 479 bench opener, he took aim at a 502 BP record, missing it twice. Hestroked 3 good deadlifts to 622 for a great 1802 TOT.

JUNIORS - Ray Miskell, 21, continues to ride a wave of improvement. The defending WPC World champ @ 123 improved his PR and APF State Record SQ from a month earlier by a whopping 66 lbs., smoking 341 on a 3rd. Ray got a 209 BP. With a shirt that fits, Ray'll do 231-242 right away! He hit a great 402 3rd DL for a big 953 TOT. His result was 314 lbs. better than his victorious sum last year. Hoosier Shane Dishman had the SQ heebie-jeebies, and only got a token one in, and then he hit a PR BP (369) and almost got 402! He won the 148s last year. The 198 class saw a great battle, pitting two up and coming stars: Mark Fanone of the Motor City Barbell Club of Roseville, MI, versus Mark Phillips, 20, from Douglasville, GA. Fanone, the AWPC world champ, did 633, 391, 562 for 1587 last year in Vegas. Phillips sat lower to get approval with 661 following his shallow opening try. He dared a record 702 try, but it wasn't to be. Fanone, with thighs like baby oak trees, cranked up 683 to take a 22 lb. advantage. Phillips pressed 352, but no more. Fanone increased his leading margin to 88 with a well executed 418. Phillips looked to have a chance to pull the fat from the fire. He nor anyone else dreamed how improved Fanone was in the DL. Phillips took 606, 650, and finally 672 for the long haul to a 1686 TOT. Fanone took the title outright with his 606 opener. Adding insult to injury, he next made 644, then duplicated Phillips' best lift of 672 for a barnstorming result of 1774! The pair will lock horns again at the WPC Worlds in November. Mark Placek outlifted Josh Murphy by 38 to take the bronze medal (1499 - 1460). All the remaining lifters in the Junior (20-23) division nabbed titles because no one contested them. Justin McShane had balanced lifts at 220 with a 622 DL final attempt for 1526. Jose Garcia looked mighty strong, but secured only 5 of 9 lifts. His 705 SQ, 462 BP, and 672 DL gave him an 1840 TOT @ 242. Jim Garza of Tulare, CA (Ray Miskell's training buddy) has been lifting only 3 months. He captured the 275s and is off to a great start in PL. Ross Aton's aggregate of 1675 captured victory @ 308. All this preliminary lifting set the stage for the levitation from San Diego, CA - Aaron Ross. The defending WPC Junior World

Joe Nickle (left) with Herb Glossbrenner. Joe thanks those who worked the meet, including Jim Johnston, Gary Baum, and especially the spotters, and judges.

Champ came in bulkier than ever @ 350. Aaron had his heart set on a 903 SQ & 2204 TOT and came mighty close. After SQing a 821 opener, he leapt right up to 400 kg. (881.8 lbs.), sank it, and ground right up. He wanted 909, and hit good depth but stayed down. Because of his increased girth his BP shirt didn't work. Aaron struggled with 523, and went to 562 - no soap. I busted his chops so he came back and fought it out on his 3rd try. Aaron is the oldest of fraternal triplets. His brother Darren HATES WEIGHTS and sister KAREN - BAKES CAKES! Ross paced himself in the DL, hitting 694 and 727 for a PR 2177 TOT. Then, it was up to 749, for the 1000 kg. TOT he wanted. It was real close, but Aaron petered out at the top. He easily won the Best Jr. lifter award. I'm sure my good buddy will fulfill his dream and more at the WPC Worlds this Fall.

SUBMASTERS (33-39) - Mike Robinson looked sharp in winning the 148s. He established two National marks with 507 and 518 deadlifts. Michigan's Greg Ripley came on top of Bedford, IN's Steve Lumpre for 165 honors. Lumpre had SQ problems, needing all his tries to get a 451 on the board. Ripley secured 485 to go ahead. Steve's BP shirt was useless, but he muscled up 303 to 297 for Greg. Lumpre got all his DLs (to 457), but Greg outdid him with 462, and the Michigan lifter was champ with 1245.

Michael Pouliat got a 628 SQ going against Brian Vales @ 181. Vales struggled twice and failed at 595, then jumped to 611 - good! Mike pressed 402 while Vales made up 5 doing 407, but taking all 3 to make it again. After Brian finished with all 3 DLs (562), Mike put the championship on ice with a 600 opener, and won 1631 to 1581. Brent Tracey duplicated his 198 win from last year - TOT 1752. En route he posted two WR benches - 490, then 501. Tony Butson was runnerup to Brent with a 1647 TOT. Tim Weikert secured third. James Kegrice of El Cajon, CA would have surely medaled, but twanged his pec severely enough to retire from the meet. Chris

Winning the 2000 Arnold Classic Bench Press wasn't enough for Glen Chabot, even though it meant the cover of Powerlifting USA and big write-ups in IRONMAN and MuscleMag magazines. Glen wants to repeat as the Arnold champion in 2001, and go on to bench that elusive 800.

Glen Chabot beachin' with Jennifer Mann

We caught up with Glen when he was out here in California (his home is in Massachusetts) for a Star Bench Workout in the current issue of POW!RLIFTER VIDEO. We saw what Glen eats -- a lot, and mostly very healthy stuff, and how he trains. At a bodyweight of 277, Glen captured the Arnold with a very clean 722, and with more bodyweight and more training he can go a lot higher.

We wanted to see what he does to build up that bench press number, and at Gold's Gym in Venice we watched as he showed the video camera what he was capable of. With the assistance of 600 lb. bencher Dave Fitzgerald, and hand-offs from bodybuilding champion (and 500 lb. bencher) Craig Titus, Glen gave a seminar on close-grip benching as he worked his way through sets of up to 500 lbs.

Gold's Gym in Venice has been the setting for many top bench pressers to show their stuff for POW!RLIFTER VIDEO, starting with Anthony Clark's reverse grip workout in 1992's premiere issue, and since then Ted Arcidi, Chris Confessore, Scott Werner, Rachel Mathias, and Garry Frank have all lifted some pretty heavy iron for the cameras. Glen carried on that tradition nicely, and then sat down for an interview, where he talked about why he does more close-grip benching than regular benching, why he only does two meets a year, and why he does only two attempts at each meet.

As you can see, Glen also had a little time to visit the beach, which is something a lot of powerlifters do in the summertime here in Los Angeles, because Muscle Beach hosts a lot of powerlifting meets each summer. The most recent one was the annual bench meet, and Power Scene went out to cover the action.

To our surprise, we weren't the only magazine on the scene. Teagan Clive and Jerry Fredrick were already there, taking pictures and notes for an upcoming story in IRONMAN, so look for expanded powerlifting coverage there. It already has a monthly column on powerlifting written by Peter Thorne, and with its coverage of the Arnold Classic and the Muscle Beach meet, it should be worth checking out.

Anyway, back to the meet, where the usual assortment of terrific lifters and Venice Beach oddballs co-exist. Dr. Michael Ludovico was down from Northern California on vacation, conveniently scheduled to hit this meet, and he powered up 507 and 529, weighing only 219. Michael told us about the Palace it can't be exactly the same), but it still sounds good, with no mirrors, lots of weights, and lots of attitude.

Dan Wagman hit his 402 opener, and Art Ramsey and Tom Manno hit benches well over 500, with Art posting a 551 and Tom a 584. Doing her first ever powerlifting meet was arm-wrestling champion Lisa Cynkin-Hardy. After training for four weeks at Gold's Gym in North Hollywood with powerlifter Kurt Elder, she hit a 121. Lisa won the 1990 Women's Amateur Worlds, and now is a pro arm wrestler. She says a huge difference between powerlifting and armwrestling is that you don't directly compete against another person in powerlifting, but we forgot to ask her if that was a good thing or a bad thing.

Next time we see her we'll ask, and in the meantime we'll be back next month with more of the good things of powerlifting. 'Til then, keep enjoying the summer, and stay strong. See you on video

When the old Soviet training centers were turning out the greatest athletes in the world, there was one constant: the training of the torso, which included the spinal erectors, rectus abdominus, lats, and most importantly obliques.

If your torso is subpar, you are susceptible to injuries.

Let's start with the abs. Many lifters go by how the abs look. But more importantly is how well they work. If you are looking for a flat stomach and narrow waist, you are looking for an injury.

First try lying leg raises. Keep the reps between 6 and 12. Add weight to the ankles when possible. Pulling a weighted sled with the straps attached to each ankle will work the abs. You can try hanging leg raises, bringing the feet up to the bar that you are hanging from.

Here is another good ab exercise: Lie on the floor on your back. Place a light (5-20 pounds) medicine ball on your feet. With the legs straight lift the legs with the lower abs and hips and thrust the ball over your head to a partner standing by your head. He will then toss the ball back down to your feet. Do 10-15 reps.

Try weighted situps on a decline bench. For the advanced, do straight-leg situps with weight.

BUILDING THE TORSO

as told to Powerlifting USA by Louie Simmons

ab work using a lat machine. Facing away from the machine, pull a tricep rope down to the back of neck, holding the two long ends against the chest. Inhale into the stomach, hold your breath, and bend over. On each rep, inhale maximally and force the hips forward. Start with high reps and light weight. But eventually work up as heavy as possible for 6-10 reps.

These are just a few ab exercises to choose from. Remember, the abs must flex first when starting a squat or a pull. That's why you take a gulp of air before back flexion begins. To teach proper ab function, lie flat on a bench, face up. Place a medicine ball or plate on the stomach, and using only the abs, raise the abs and hold for 6 seconds. This simulates pushing your abs out against your belt. Do not erred.

I won't talk about rotational exercises for the powerlifter, but if you are a player on a field or court, you must do rotational work.

The obliques require a lot of work. Try one-arm dumbbell side press. If you look at pictures of the old-time lifters, you will see incredible development of their side muscles. Here are a few exercises for the obliques: side bends with dumbbells, side deadlift, one-arm suck in your abs when you lift! This is dangerous and could cause back injury. Yes there are many people who teach you to hold your abs in. Apparently they learned this from bodybuilders, who incidentally suffer many back injuries. If a ball has no air inside, it can't hold much weight. Blow the ball up with air and it can support very heavy loads. The same holds true for your abdominals.

Use weight, rubber bands, stability balls, etc., for your ab work. When one exercise becomes routine, start a new one and rotate every time its effectiveness is low-deadlift using an offset sumo style, side bends with a barbell loaded on one side across the shoulders, ab work on the lat machine as described earlier but with one foot ahead of the other, static work on a cable machine. Again, there are others to try, but always rotate from one to another.

Spinal erectors are another important muscle group of the torso. This muscle group is worked effectively with good mornings. Hold the bar high on the back for lower back work. Hold the bar lower on the back for the upper erectors. Use a wide stance for more hip work. The back has flexion, so do many good mornings with a bent back, but try to straighten the back on the way up. Arched-back good mornings build strength for the squat and in holding a sumo position.

For squatting strength, push the glutes to the rear and arch the back as much as possible when doing good mornings. The bar should travel only about a foot. This will teach you the start and finish of a squat. A longer range of motion will build good strength, but not necessarily good squat form.

For those of you who can't keep an arch while squatting, try sitting into a squat and have a partner place one hand on your lower back, or sacrum area, and the other hand on your upper chest. The partner will hold the lower back stationary and gently push back on the upper chest, to cause a super-arch in the lower and upper back. Start with light weight (95, 135, 185, 225 pounds). Hold each one for 15 seconds. This method was first used at the original Westside Barbell Club, in Culver City, CA. Bill "Peanuts" West used this for the deadlift. They were years ahead of their time. Also try seated good mornings on boxes of different sizes or straddle a bench, trying to touch your face to the bench. This exercise is not for the thick-waisted.

The combo good morning/squat is done by doing a bent over good morning as far as you can go and then squatting the rest of the way down to parallel. To raise, extend the back, legs, and hips.

Paul Anderson used to do good mornings with his heels raised on 2x4s. He also used a 6 inch strap around his thighs that was connected from behind to the power rack. This exercise works the hamstrings and very low back. Start light, 1-5 reps for maximum strength, 6-12 reps for muscle building.

Deadlifts and cleans of various types are useful: box deadlifts, rack deadlifts, one-arm deadlifts, power cleans, power snatches, one-arm power cleans, one-arm power snatches. Do 1 rep for maximum strength and very high reps (12-20) for muscular conditioning. We believe in doing one or the other.

Squats using a variety of bars and boxes are beneficial to building the torso. These include squats off boxes of varying heights, front squats, Manta Ray squats, Safety Bar squats, one-legged squats with the back foot supported or one-legged deadlifts (builds glutes). Try squatting with the bar or dumbbells raised overhead. These exercises provide a lot of spinal erector work.

Lats can be worked with rows of all kinds: one-arm rows, two-arm rows with a barbell, two-arm rows with two dumbbells, chest-supported rows, long-pulley rows. Do lat pulldowns with a variety of attachments, and chins with weight using all three grips. With the exercises listed, bands and chains can be attached to make any exercise much more effective.

Here is how you might design a workout. Do a squat, a good morning, or a pull. Work up to a max single or triple (singles on squats and pulls, triples on good mornings). After the core exercise, do a lat and a lower back exercise and abs, including the obliques. Switch the core lift each week. Rotate the exercises for the lats, lower back, and abs. When your progress slows, just switch to a different group of exercises and progress will pick up again. There is no need to start over when you can switch exercises and continually raise your ability. It won't be long until you're at the top.

I smoked it like I was still doing warmups. I noticed a marked difference on the rebound. The rebound was just unbelievable. IWZ got tighter, easier, even when I didn't wrap all the way tight. The way they hold, I didn't need to chalk to keep them in place on my legs. IWZ gives tons of rebound and are so supportive. IWZ are far ahead of anything else."

A PARADIGM SHIFT IN KNEE WRAP DESIGN!

I recently returned from a consulting engagement with a Division 1 football program. I was contracted to review and provide insight on their strength training program. This university had one of the best facilities I had ever seen. They must have had 15 power racks, 15 power bench racks, 15 lifting platforms plus all the latest machines and dumbbells you would ever need. The first thing I thought was, "Man, you could really make a team strong here." At least that is what I thought until I looked up at the wall. They had a list of standard goals to be met by each position. The lineman's goals were to Squat 500 lbs., Bench Press 385 lbs., Incline Press 325 lbs., and Power Clean 300 lbs. I was first amazed at how low the numbers were for a lineman who weighs between 260 and 300 pounds, but - I thought - at least they had standard goals for each of them to strive for. This was fine until I looked further down the wall and saw a chart for all those who have reached this status. I stood in disbelief, as there were none listed. Now I was determined to figure out how this could be.

As I stood there in my disbelief, I overheard two people passing by that were in town for a coaching conference. They were also very amazed at these numbers. I was about to comment, when I learned that they were amazed for different reasons than myself. They thought the numbers were great! Now, I started to wonder "what is wrong with this picture?". After some thought, I figured out what it was. People need to begin to view strength for what it really is.

Strength training simply means the pursuit of being stronger. Somewhere down the line this theory has been lost. Many times there is too much emphasis placed on maintaining strength and not creating it. How can two people look at the same board and one be amazed at how low the numbers are and another amazed at how high they are? To answer this we must look at what I call the personal paradigms of training.

A personal paradigm is the way in which one sees the world behind their own eyes. I once heard this explained through the example of a "map" by Steven Covey author of "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People." If you were to attend one of my seminars in Columbus, OH and I sent you a map titled Columbus, but it really was a map of Detroit, MI, the first thing that would happen is that you would get lost and then backtrack to see if you missed a street. After getting lost again, you might give me a call and I would tell you to try harder, and that you should re-read the map. You would reply, "I have read the map, and can't find the streets." I would tell you to take your time and look at it more thoroughly. Well, you would head back out and once again get lost. This time you might head into a bookstore and buy the best motivation book on the market. Now you are fired up and head back out again only to get lost one more time. You see, the problem is very simple, no matter how hard you try or how motivated you get, you still have the wrong map. Until you change your current map, you will be lost. Most coaches and lifters underestimate what strength really is either because they have been viewing what strength is by using the wrong map, or the wrong set of definitions and standards.

STRENGTH - What It Really Is as told to Powerlifting USA by Dave Tate CSCS

In the field of strength training there really are no set definitions of what expectable levels of strength are for individual athletes. What counts are the personal definitions set by the lifters themselves, or the trainer, or the coach. Let me explain further. Let's assume you decided to hire a personal trainer or coach to train you for your next competition. Your current lifts are: Squat 700 lbs., Bench 450 lbs. and Deadlift 650 lbs. Unless this trainer has a certain degree of strength themselves they may feel impressed with your current level. How hard do you think you will be trained and on what level of knowledge would the training program be built on? This trainer may only be able to bench 300 lbs. and their best current client can only bench 350 lbs., so to him your 450 lb. bench is outstanding. It will make you feel great to receive all the praise from this trainer, but will it help you? Your current level of 450 lbs. may be far under what you are really capable of doing.

One standard goal I believe in for the squat, bench and deadlift that can be used for most power athletes and football players is the TOP 100 in Powerlifting USA. Now I understand that not every athlete is a powerlifter or even wants to be, but I also feel a college or professional football athlete should be able to at least break into the TOP 100 or at least come within 100 pounds of it. Another standard for reviewing the squat and bench press strength are the strength ratings compiled by Dale Harder in his book, "Strength & Speed Ratings" available from Crain's Muscle World. (See Tables).

Keep one thing in mind about powerlifting and please don't misunderstand my point. Powerlifting is a very small sport compared to others and is filled with a majority of athletes who were not good enough to play football, basketball, baseball or any other high profile sport past the high school level or those who are retired from those sports (past their prime). Yes, many lifters are suited for the sport, but not as many as one might think. Take a close look at many of your TOP 100 lifters. Only a small percentage of powerlifters are suited for the sport, most have average structure. This does not mean that powerlifters do not train hard for what they have achieved. I believe they train harder and smarter than most coaches and trainers are currently training their athletes in terms of maximum strength development. Think about this for a minute and you will see my point. A Division 1 athlete has reached that level because of their genetic disposition and the hard work required to reach that level. They are the cream of the crop or some of the best athletes in the country. Now why is it that these best of the best athletes can't even come close to those powerlifters that were not regarded as the "best of the best" or "past their prime"?

Is it because the powerlifters have better facilities? Most train in garages, key clubs and local gyms while division one athletes train in multimillion dollar complexes complete with physical therapy centers and the best equipment money can buy. Better coaching? How many powerlifting coaches do you know of? I can think of about ten. Now how many strength coaches and trainers are there? There are about one or two strength coaches for every school, now including high schools, and thousands of Personal Trainers.

Why the difference in strength? There are a few reasons I can think of, but the one that comes to mind is the comprehension level. A powerlifter may think they are strong until they go to a local meet and find out they may not be as strong as they thought. So they head back to the gym and reevaluate the program and start back to work with a new definition of what strength is. Then when they build themselves up to a higher level and compete at their first national competition, and they find out again that they still are not as strong as they thought and need to change their definition of what strength is. The best lifters are the ones who are always in a constant process of trying to push it up to the next level, they are always redefining themselves. If you listen to these lifters you will almost never hear them say they missed a lift because they were not strong enough. What you will hear them say is that the bar fell out of the groove, the equipment didn't fit right, or they had one lagging muscle, but never that they were not strong enough. Being stronger is a forgone conclusion and is just a matter of putting it together. For a novice lifter, coach, or trainer, you will hear they were not strong enough or that they just don't have the strength potential or genetics. There are no "new definitions" being made.

Another reason for the strength difference is that many coaches and trainers feel that a 400 pound bench press and 500 lb. squats are unnecessary for sports performance. I ask, is not all strength based on maximal strength? Plus, if you are spending time in the weight room should that time not be devoted to getting stronger? Why spend valuable training time just maintaining strength? It makes no sense to go into the weight room to work on maintaining strength when the same time could be spent on developing strength. I do understand that there are many components of fitness when it comes to the total development of the athlete and that maximum strength is only one of them. A training program for a client or athlete based solely on maximum strength development is a major mistake. You must also address flexibility, endurance, mobility, agility, speed and many other components. I believe these components need to be trained and are all effected by the total absolute strength you have. In other words, all things being equal, the stronger athlete will win.

So how then can you change your definition of strength?

1. As a powerlifter you must train with a group of other lifters. Having good training partners is a vital part of the process. Very few ever reach the top by themselves. You should try to get with a group of lifters who are stronger than yourself. This will reinforce the belief that it can be done when you see it being done time and time again in the gym. I used to feel a 600 lb. bench was a big bench until 8 people in our gym (Westside Barbell) did it. Now it seems to be in reach for anybody who believes it can be done.

2. As a lifter you must compete: have you ever noticed the biggest attitudes are held by those who only lift in the gym? These lifters believe they are the biggest and best out there. Why is it that the lifters who compete at the highest levels do not possess these same attitudes? I believe it is because to compete at this level they have all been humbled many times and realize that there are many strong lifters out there and they are only one of them.

3. As a coach or trainer, you must work out. You would think this is a given, but it is not. There are many trainers and coaches out there who have the credentials on paper and wear them as well, but there are still far too many who only have credentials on paper. I wonder how you can teach strength if you have never possessed it in the first place. I overheard a top trainer giving training instructions to an 800 pound squatter on what he had to do to fix his technique. I would venture to guess that this trainer's best squat ever is around 400 lbs. Having done an 800 lb. squat I can tell you there is a big difference in what you have to do to squat 800 lbs. compared to 400 lbs. I am not saying that all strength coaches and trainers need to squat 800 pounds, but they should at least know what it feels like to lift maximal loads. I was always brought up with the belief to never ask someone to do what you would not do yourself.

A second point about this topic is the value of respect. You will gain greater respect from your client and coach if you are practicing what you preach. This is best done if you have the opportunity to train with the client or team. Let them see the intensity you put into your own training and you will get the same intensity back. Come to Westside and view the intensity of the training. You will notice that Louie is right in there, banging away with us. Would that same intensity be there if he was not training? If you look at the recent success of Westside in the past five years, it directly relates to the time when Louie started his comeback. Think about it!

4. Check the PL USA TOP 100. As mentioned above, show your clients and athletes these lists. Let them know that they can reach the same strength level. Praise them for all personal records while encouraging and recognizing their potential to reach even higher goals. In comparison to the lineman's goals at the beginning of the article, the last numbers on the TOP 100 for the 275 lb. weight class last year were a 700 lb. squat and a 507 lb. bench. If this doesn't inspire the athlete to strive for bigger numbers, let them know that the goals of a 500 lb. squat and 385 lb. bench would not even break the TOP 100 for the 165 lb. weight class. With this in mind, are those goals solid goals for a lineman weighing 275 to 300 pounds in a four year program?

5. Believe in yourself and act as if you do. This goes for both the powerlifter and coach. If you tell them to act as if they are the strongest team in the league or you act as if you are one of the Top 10 powerlifters, then you are on the right path. Act as if you do, means to do the same things they would do. Do they spend time in the gym training on solid programs? Do they research and read everything they can on strength? Do they have a positive attitude? Do they never skip workouts? Do they look to those who are better than them for guidance? Do you?

Vince Lombardi once said "I firmly believe that any man's finest hour - his greatest fulfillment to all he holds dear - is that moment when he has worked his heart out in a good cause and lies exhausted on the field of battle - victorious." Do you want to lie on the ground victorious or with your face down in the dirt?

Dale Harder, author of "Strength & Speed Ratings"

Let me tell you about my good friend David Brundage. At 6'5", 275 pounds of rock hard muscle, David is one of the biggest and toughest guys this side of the Mississippi. But just between you and me he is a real Teddy Bear. I am serious! He is a strange mix; big and powerful, yet kind and gentle - the kind of guy who could crush your head like a walnut, but who is too compassionate to kill a fly. That may sound crazy, but it is true. As big and tough as he is, that is how gentle and kind he is.

Let me say this too, that potentially David is one of the greatest athletes I have ever met. Over the years I have trained with some of the best athletes in the world and David has as much latent ability as any of them. He is perfectly proportioned with thick dense muscle and he has incredible quickness and agility for a big man. With minimal effort David could be playing in the NFL or lifting world class poundage in powerlifting or Olympic lifting. He is that gifted genetically. I am telling you the guy has world class written all over him.

Not only is he a great athlete he is also extremely intelligent, articulate, and artistic. Actually he is a first rate musician. More importantly though, he is a wonderful person. He is so gracious and so loving and so full of wondrous things to share. His entire life is one of good will, as

I would like my life to be, and as I would hope that you would like your life to be also.

To put it briefly David has it all, brains, brawn, and temperament. In this world, he is as perfect as you could imagine, he has a magnificent body, a beautiful mind, and a loving disposition, but to hear David tell it you would think that he was the biggest, dumbest wimp who ever walked the planet. It is sad but true. Guys will walk up to him in the gym and say, "Man you are awesome!" And do you know what? David will say something like "Man, I'll never be any good." He won't give himself any credit. He will do the same thing when someone compliments him on his intelligence, or artistic skills. He is always putting himself down. To be honest it drives me crazy. This magnificent human being somewhere along the line got this idea that he is so much less than he really is. He is a giant among men, yet he perceives himself as being substandard. The problem is, if he sees it that way then that is what he is.

I am just praying that one day he opens his eyes and sees things the way they really are. I'm hoping that he will recognize his true splendor and grandeur. And I am yearning for the moment that he perceives his potential to do wonderful and magnificent things with his life. When that happens a sleeping giant will emerge, I promise you that. You will behold a man that will reach out and touch the pinnacle of greatness. Unfortunately, that day may never come unless David changes his mindset. In order to reach greatness you have to believe that greatness is attainable. As Jesus Christ said, "As a man thinketh so is he". This is a law that we all need to comprehend.

Now let us be honest; we all have voices in our heads that undermine our faith and our abilities, but we have to work on trading in those negative voices for supportive, more realistic ones. As I said before, nothing is impossible if you believe in yourself. The greatest dreams that have been accomplished by men and women have been called impossibilities - and somebody has proved that the impossible was possible. Through belief, you can do or become anything you want. You can go to the stars ... heck, you can go to new galaxies. Just put your mind to it, and watch the magic begin.

There is a very enlightening Indian fable that I love to tell. It is about a young brave who took an egg from an eagle's nest and put it in a chicken's nest. When the egg hatched, the eagle thought he was a chicken. As the eagle grew up among the chickens, he learned their way of life. He pecked the ground for food, scratched the dust, and made vocal sounds like the chickens he lived with. One day to looked toward the sky and saw an eagle soaring above him. He flexed his wings and said to his mother, "I wish I could fly like that." "Don't be silly," his mother said, "you're a chicken; only eagles can soar so high in the sky" Feeling foolish and convinced that his desire to fly was futile, the eagle went back to scratching and pecking in the dirt. He had, for all practical purposes, become a chicken - because he believed he was a chicken. Never again did he question his role on earth.

It is all a matter of perception. When the eagle couldn't fly, it wasn't because he didn't have the natural ability, but rather because his belief was, "I am a chicken, and chickens can't fly." In order to fly, he needed to alter his perception of himself. He had to recognize his God-given abilities, and/or change his mindset concerning these abilities. He had to BELIEVE!

Although our perceptions of reality determine what we believe, what we believe determines what we are and will become. As human beings, we tend to act appropriately to what we believe to be true, regardless of what is actually true or false. In other words, we are a product of conditioning in much the same manner that a computer is the product of its programming. As they say in the science of cybernetics, "Garbage in, garbage out". It is that simple. With that in mind, we need to rid ourselves of negatives. Rid ourselves of words like can't, never, no, hopeless, and impossible. These are words for fools, not intelligent people. We need to erase such words out of our vocabulary. Never say never! Hopeless - nothing's hopeless ... impossible - nothing's impossible!

Awakening the Sleeping Giant Within... On Saturday night, January 29, 2000 A.D., at the Ali Chan Shrine Club Banquet Hall, Cary Shanholz made not only Cumberland, Maryland and Allegany County history, but also Powerlifting history. Gary received one of the top awards, the Recognition Award, from the Dapper Dan Committee, for his 1999 A.A.U. World title as a 198 pounder, as a Master lifter (age 47), with 4 world records in his 32 years as a lifter. (photo by Glenn Murphy Jr.)

This column will answer questions about drugs used by athletes and detection techniques for these drugs. Because of the demand, I will occasionally answer questions concerning health and training problems which do not directly relate to drug use and detection. If you wish a personal response to your question send $15 to cover office and secretarial expenses. Please, no questions about how and when to use anabolic steroids. DEAR MAURO: I heard that if you eat carbohydrates along with protein, it impairs the digestion of protein. Several people have told me I should alternate a carbohydrate meal with a protein meal. What do you think? Tom B.

DEAR TOM: I've heard this kind of nonsense ever since I was a teen -- "Don't eat carbs with protein, don't eat protein with fat, don't eat fruits with vegetables, and don't eat anything with anything else" -- First of all, let me tell you that that's no way to live. You're so worried about what to eat with what, that it's hard to find the time and energy to do anything else. The next thing I want you to realize is that your digestive system is both tough and versatile. It can handle practically anything from baby food to pulverized rocks (although I wouldn't make a habit of the rocks - talk about something that's "heavy on your stomach"). And it's built to efficiently handle a wide variety of nutrients all at one time.

A recent study adds some fuel to my fire (International Journal of Obesity; 2000; 24: 492-496). Although it looks at combining foods while dieting, the conclusions of this study apply to the effect (or lack of effect) of eating different macronutrients at different times. In the study, researchers at the University Hospital in Geneva, Switzerland found that a diet in which different types of foods were consumed at different times of the day was no more effective than a standard low-calorie diet.

So much for those fad diets that recommend that people avoid consuming fat and carbohydrates in the same meal. I've always ridiculed diets that say you should eat a hamburger without the bun, and consume the bun or other bread later in the day. Now a new study suggests you might as well enjoy the whole burger in all its glory.

The researchers admitted 54 obese people to the hospital and divided them into two groups. One group was placed on a standard low-calorie diet (the balanced diet) while the other consumed a similar calorie diet, but avoided eating fat and carbohydrates in the same meal (the dissociated diet). The participants exercised for two hours daily. At the end of the six week program those on the balanced diet lost the same amount of weight as those on the dissociated diet. Both groups had a similar loss of bodyfat and an identical reduction in blood sugar, cholesterol and insulin levels. The bottom line here is that if weight loss is what you are after, it is not how you separate your food that matters, but what and how much you eat.

My advice is not to worry about whether or not your body can handle a variety of nutrients at one time. It can. Instead concentrate on eating a healthy diet, increasing your protein intake, exercising properly and using the most effective nutritional supplements. Your body will thank you for it.

I would begin this with "At the risk of causing some difficulty...", but there is no doubt that my following statements will cause "difficulty". Some lifters are going to be downright over the top. I would like to state very definitively, that in my opinion, the worst thing that happened or could have happened to the barbell squat as an exercise, was making it a competitive lift. Before reflexively shaking one's head and assuming that once again, "Dr. Ken is stuck in 1956", give serious thought to some very obvious points. While I have in the past made similar statements regarding the squat and while others have made the point that the squat should no longer be a part of powerlifting competition (does everyone recall the infamous "Ban The Squat" article in PL USA by Hugh Cassidy?), I am referring to the effect that training for competition has had upon what should be the most important and effective exercise one can do.

This was brought to mind while I was adjusting a patient earlier this week. The gentleman is a good local lifter, competitive in his class in contests ranging from New Jersey through New England. He stated that the evolution of lifting equipment has finally reached the point of absurdity. This he decided, when he walked into his gym and made the observation that one of the lighter lifters had a suit that was so tight, made of material that was so intractable, that "the other guys had to hang him from the squat rack. They had him hanging from his straps to get him deep enough into the suit. Three or four guys just couldn't do it. He looked just like a provolone hanging in the Italian deli!" I cracked up at the imagined sight of this lifter, literally hanging off the squat rack, feet dangling in the air, trying to get into the lifting suit, and, yes, it brought to mind hanging meats and cheeses. We both expanded the conversation and I recalled clearly, that everyone who gave me lifting advice from 1960 on, always told me first and foremost that I had to squat. The squat meant a barbell squat, of course, as there were no available machines that mimicked the movement. A hack squat was still done holding the bar behind the buttocks and the so called Hack Squat machine was just starting to come into vogue. A leg press referred to a vertical or what is today called an inverted leg press, but for those seeking the highest levels of strength, one built the program around the barbell squat. These were done as the original name suggested, "deep knee bends", by lowering oneself so that if possible, the hamstrings contacted the calves. While most could not get quite this low, what is now referred to as an Olympic squat (most powerlifters do "high bar" squats no lower than the depth they usually squat to with their usual stance) was standard procedure. Thus, it was expected that one would descend as low as their levels of flexibility, structural leverages, and previous injuries allowed. This was not, as is implied all over the internet, a test of "manhood" with only the "real men" descending as far as possible, but "just the way it was done", no more and no less. It was understood that one would work "more" muscle tissue by going through the fullest possible, safe range of motion so everyone knew tried to squat deeply. If you note the range of motion for most lifters in any gym, they squat only as low as they feel they need to in order to get three white lights. You very, very rarely attend a meet where a coach is yelling, "no, no, you're going too deep". If anything, the majority of the lifters either don't squat deeply enough to satisfy the judges or are concerned about getting enough appropriate depth in their descent. Training mimics competition. Training is done with shallow squats, meaning squats that may be contest legal, but often are not and certainly, fall far short of one's possible full range of squat motion.

Squats were considered to be a great exercise, "great" because it was effective in stimulating not only increases in the muscle tissue size and strength of the involved hip and thigh musculature, but because it seemed to stimulate growth in one's overall body, in many muscular structures. Even Arthur Jones, developer of the Nautilus machines, many times made the statement that squats, done with a barbell, "were a miracle machine" due to the potential gains one could accrue. For any athlete or lifter seeking to gain muscular bodyweight, the standard advice for decades was, "do high rep squats". This referred most often to sets of twenty reps, although the number twenty was neither set in stone, nor possessed of any magical qualities. Simply, full range barbell squats, done for reps in the fifteen to thirty range, stimulated growth if one was progressive in the weight increases and consistent over time. Their was no concern that "science" dictated that one did not "build strength" doing these higher rep sets. If you did them you understood that you not only became stronger in the involved musculature, but stronger overall. You stimulated tissue growth, not only in the involved musculature, but overall. You had the added benefit of a sustained period of induced deep breathing and an elevation in heart rate. The elevation in heart rate was sometimes extreme and over time, with consistent application of high rep squats, provided a number of health related benefits.

On Monday, April 24, 2000, Dr. Ken Leistner was presented an award by the Lakeview Youth Federation for his twenty five years of dedicated work with the organization that provides services to youth at risk in the Lakeview-Malverne communities. Dr. Leistner also received citations from the Town of Hempstead for "three decades of dedicated service to youth of the Town of Hempstead" based upon his many and various community oriented activities that has focused on the development and enhancement of adolescents. The presentations took place at the Derrick Adkins Classic Track and Field meet. From left to right are: Dr. Ken Leistner, Councilwoman D. Goolsby, LYF founder C. Nanton, Olympic Champion Derrick Adkins, Presiding Town Supervisor R. Guardino, and former college teammate of Dr. Ken - Councilman C. Fisher.

As an exercise used to prepare one for competition, a competition where one performed one maximal effort in the squat, training became tailored to that outcome. Thus, when squats were done, in addition to limiting the range of motion, purposely limiting the range of motion, the reps rarely exceeded five in any set and most often, ranged from one to three. This was done to train more "specifically" for the competition squat. Unfortunately, using lower reps consistently mean utilizing heavier weights consistently. For many, this produced more exposure to risk of injury than the performance of higher reps with a relatively lighter weight. No benefits were received for stimulating the heart and lungs, relative to those seen with higher rep sets. With the advent of squatting attire, another variable was thrown in.

There are those like Rickey Crain who state that a lifter, if training heavily, and I'm paraphrasing here to make a point, should always wear some sort of support attire. This may mean and may range from the supportive undergarment to a lifting suit that may require one to three individuals to get into. It means a large, supportive belt and knee wraps to most. Certainly, if you are competing against others wearing the attire, you are at a severe competitive disadvantage if you don't and I believe one should either join the fray and dress appropriately, or go into the meet with the understanding and acceptance that they're probably going to get their ass handed to them. If you are going to compete wearing the supportive attire, you certainly need to train in it, if not all of the time, certainly during enough of your training sessions to be able to know with some accuracy what you can do while wearing it and being comfortable while wearing it. This means many and, for some, almost all squat workouts are done in the supportive workout attire, in full or in part. I'm not making a case against the equipment at this time, but there is certainly more muscular stimulation if one does not wear a supportive suit, belt, wraps, and underwear.

Where at one time, the deep knee bend was done as the most important and effective exercise in the gym, in any gym, it is now done for low reps, wearing supportive equipment, through a partial range of possible, safe motion. While a case can easily be made that a competitive lifter must train like this, at least part of the year or while preparing for a meet, most non-competitive trainees, most with absolutely no intention, no aspirations, and no possibility of ever entering a powerlifting contest, have also adopted this exact mode of training. Extend this to the deadlift too, at least in terms of reps per set, sumo style lifting which was designed to improve leverages in order to lift "more" weight, and supportive equipment in at least the use of a belt. The deadlift too was used as an exercise, another effective one that worked "a lot" of muscle tissue. That was the purpose of including squats and/or deadlifts in any program. It was an opportunity to work large muscle groups with one exercise in a manner that would leave the trainee fatigued, but stimulated, at the end of the set. You don't see this anymore, or at least rarely, because everyone seems to train the squat and deadlift as if they were preparing for a contest, with low reps and leverage techniques designed to utilize more work, while perhaps not best stimulating the most growth or strength increase. Is there an answer? I can suggest a bout of high rep training part of the year, but most won't want to hear about it.

Dr. Ken Leistner

O.K., so we're into overhead lifting, not just what you can bench, and, yeah, to us, backs are sort of what biceps are to bodybuilders, but that's only the beginning. Strength is our thing—what you can do, not what you look like. That's why we cover Olympic lifting, Highland Games, strongman, and arm wrestling as our main events. Training. Athlete profiles. Major contest coverage. We feature the top writers in the strength world, and even though we don't lure you with bikini shots, we recognize the value of good photography, so we strive to bring you the best anywhere when it comes to lifting, throwing, and pulling.

One of the biggest men at the 1999 World's Strongest Man contest in Malta was the giant Samoan, Joe Onosai. At 6 ft. 4 1/2 in., Joe weighed in at an incredible 186 kg. (410 lbs.). Joe is the epitome of the gentle giant – quiet and softly spoken out of competition but a fierce competitor on the powerlifting platform and in the strongman arena.

Like the majority of successful strongmen Joe has a very strong powerlifting background and, indeed, considers powerlifting to be essential in gaining the basic strength for strongman events. Joe has every right to speak with authority as his credentials in powerlifting are impeccable. In October 1993 Joe entered his first meet as a novice superheavyweight in the Hawaii State Powerlifting Championships and totaled an outstanding 1962 lbs. (890 kg.). By April of 1994, Joe had bumped that total up to 2061 lbs. (935 kg.) and in doing so won the American Drug Free Powerlifting Association's Lifetime Drug Free Nationals in Baltimore. In July of the same year Joe entered the A.D.F.P.A.'s Open Nationals and again won at superheavyweight via lifts of 777 573 705 for a 2055 lb. (932.5 kg.) total and defeated excellent lifters such as Vae Mafuli and Binkowski in the process. This

The Strongmen Interviews JOE ONOSAI by Derek Cope

Joe Onosai - a leader in football, powerlifting, and strength competition result gave Joe the opportunity to lift at the World Drug Free Powerlifting Federation World Championships in September 1994 and Joe got a 2nd place to the Russian Sergei Alexeev via 777 534 688 = 2000 lbs.

Since that time Joe has increased on all three lifts and now has lifts of Squat - 843 lbs. (382.5 kg.), Bench - 628 lbs. (285 kg.) and Deadlift - 722 lbs. (327.5 kg.). In the interview conducted for PL USA Joe stated that for powerlifting he uses peaking cycles comprising of 10 to 12 weeks in length. Encompassed within the cycle are three phases: a conditioning phase, followed by a strength phase, and ending with a power phase. Typically a cycle will begin with poundages that equate to 60% of his 1 rep maximum lift and then Joe will gradually work through the cycle and by the end of the 12 weeks will be handling poundages that equate to 90% of his 1 rep maximum.

Joe made the point that his training differs when preparing for strongman contests and said that he trains more like a football player than a powerlifter. Once more, Joe can speak with authority as in his senior year at college Joe was nominated Offensive Player of the Year with the University of Hawaii's football team and ended up playing for the Dallas Cowboys. While with the Cowboys he was side-lined with a bad neck injury and used powerlifting to rehabilitate himself. Football's loss was powerlifting's gain.

So what does Joe change in his training schedule when training for strongman events? Joe commented that he substitutes the incline press for the bench press as he feels that the incline press is more applicable to movements currently contested in the strongman arena.

Regarding leg and back power Joe employs the power clean and high pulls to build explosiveness off the floor and can power clean poundages in excess of 400 lbs.

Although Joe rarely deadlifts off the floor, the deadlift is worked hard in the rack from different heights and, prior to the World's Strongest Man in Malta, Joe hit a 925 lb. (420 kg.) double from just above the knees. To train the grip Joe will work up in poundage as far as he can before using straps.

Interestingly, Joe's repetition range is dependent upon how he views a forthcoming strongman competition. If Joe feels that a contest is comprised mostly of power events he will employ heavy weights in his preparation for low repetitions. If he feels that a contest is comprised more of events demanding speed or explosiveness, Joe will use slightly higher repetitions in his preparation.

It is a fact that a number of events at World Strongest Man level require a competitor to display a good level of cardio-vascular fitness. Recognizing this, Joe uses sprints, shuttle runs, treadmill and bike work in his routine. In addition Joe trains hard at loading events and will race a training partner on loading to provide extra incentive. With the varied and amount of training that Joe does, overtraining can be a potential hazard but Joe recognizes this problem and knows his body now so that training intensity is backed off if he feels over-trained.

Regarding his diet Joe does not need to force feed to maintain his bodyweight and, in fact, would like to come down in bodyweight as he feels that his optimum bodyweight for strongman contest is around 165 kg.

Regarding the future Joe stated that as long as he feels he is competitive he will continue and yes, Joe still has ambitions in powerlifting; a goal of 700 lbs. in the bench press was mentioned in the interview and Joe definitely feels he has the ability to accomplish this goal.

Along with his training Joe keeps busy as a pastor in Hawaii and endeavors to help youngsters stay on the right path. To this end Joe will perform a strength exhibition and then, having won people's attention, will give a motivational talk. For his inspiration Joe mentions his wife Ann and his three daughters Talia, Careena and Shayna.

As far as being competitive, Joe Onosai has proved that he definitely is, with 3rd placings in both the I.F.S.A. Grand Prix in Hawaii and in Prague just prior to the World's Strongest Man in Malta. Joe is increasing with experience in every contest he enters and as he fine tunes his preparation even more you can be sure this huge, colorful competitor will be a factor in every contest he enters.

One of the most memorable moments I have ever witnessed at a powerlifting meet was a team (2 man) deadlift event at the Badger Open in Wisconsin back in the early 80s. That event featured the team of a young Ed Coan and the legendary Ernie Frantz. That night they pulled up a two man deadlift of around 1300 pounds. That was the epitome of true team lifting. Both had to be similar in strength and size to not only coordinate the effort, but fit between the bar at the same time. A coach standing in front of them coordinated the pull off the floor so both human forklifts pulled at the same time and speed. No, this article is not about how you can train and compete in the 2 man team deadlift event, but it is about the most common team lifting discipline; forced reps.

Forced reps is one of the most popular training methods used by lifters of all types. Their use can add a new level of intensity and, hopefully, increased size and strength. However, many lifters stand to gain by re-evaluating their current forced rep practices.

Last week at the gym, I heard some serious sounding straining and vocal encouragement from a couple of lifters who I will refer to as 'Hans' and 'Franz' (no relation to the aforementioned Ernie). Hans was pushing hard on a massive 185 pound bench while bridging up hard and high enough to get WCW's Goldberg off of him. Meanwhile, Franz was shouting "It's all you" while upright rowing the 185 up and down for 3 reps. After racking the bar, Franz took his turn and Hans reciprocated with an equal "it's all you" while augmenting the set with his own upright rowing. After that set I thought they were done and would probably lumber over to the dumbbell rack to do some 15 pound dumbbell flies, but they continued on working their way up to 205, 225 and then finishing with 245. If enough wasn't enough, they did the same for a few sets on the decline bench. After the 185 pound bench set, each subsequent rep was completely missed with no push off the chest at all. Each jump in weight just resulted in Hans or Franz upright rowing more weight to get the weight off each other's chest. There was no bench work at all being done, and they looked like complete dorks and the sad thing was their traps weren't even good despite all that upright rowing. This is probably the extreme scenario for misuse of the forced rep method, but I'm sure most of our readership has seen similar displays of team lifting. Let's look at some common misapplications of forced reps and then some ways of using this method for better gains.

First, let's start out with a quick explanation of this principle. With forced reps, a lifter completes a rep of an exercise with a degree of extraneous assistance, usually from a training partner. For example, you may get 5 reps on the bench by yourself, but on the 6th one, you get stuck half way up. Your training partner would then grab the bar and help you just enough to complete the rep. Of course, more reps can be done after this initial failure with more help from your partner. By using this method, you can work past failure, adding intensity. The amount of assistance needed to can vary from a finger touch to an "all hands on deck" effort from every lifter in your gym.

In hopes to further increase the benefits of forced reps, some lifters take it to extremes that are not necessarily effective and may potentially prove to be injurious. Let's expand on the previous example. Upon failing on the 6th rep, the lifter completes the rep with just enough help from his partner, but he continues on for more reps. With every additional rep, his training partner must lift more and more of the weight because of the lifter's rapidly declining strength level. This can continue until the partner is lifting the entire weight and effectively doing an 'out of position upright row' just like the Hans and Franz example earlier. This creates a potentially dangerous situation for both lifters. The lifter himself has less and less control of the bar and could easily get hurt. The helper must upright row the bar up from a bent forward position, which could also result in a muscle pull or back injury. This could result in the bar not getting back into the rack even with both lifters involved.

Another forced reps example involves using a weight over one's max to get some negative or eccentric resistance. A lifter with a max of 250 in the bench loads 275 on the bar for a forced rep set. The goal would be to lower the bar slowly and at least try to get the weight going off the chest and, with his partner's help, finish the rep. What generally happens is the bar is lowered slowly at the start, but as it nears the midpoint of its descent, the sheer weight of the bar overwhelms the lifter and the bar crashes down to his chest. The press or "bounce" gets about 1 inch up and the helper must again upright row the bar up from a precarious position. The helper did far more actual work than the bencher. Some lifters believe that such sets can strengthen the muscles, ligaments and tendons so they can better handle max poundage on competition style lifts. There's a guy at my gym who routinely does this kind of stuff, but most gym members try hard not be around when he needs help to force some reps. Perhaps he should train with Hans and Franz.

A better scenario would be use less weight, perhaps 100% or less of max. When lowering the weight, concentrate on lowering the weight evenly, from the top to the bottom. By doing this, you may develop more power right off the chest, in the case of the bench, instead of solely working the top of the lift. If you use too much weight, the bar will drop quickly at mid-point and the bottom portion of the lift will receive little work. The start of the lifts is an area where many lifters need the most improvement anyway.

A good rule of thumb is the 10% rule. That is never add more than 10% weight or reps in any one training session. By using too heavy of a weight for forced reps, you can easily injure yourself. Give your muscles, etc. time to acquaint themselves to the increased weight.

In addition, because of the intensity involved with forced reps, their use should be limited so as not to inhibit recuperation. Remember, recuperative ability varies from individual to individual. Some lifters might be able to push the level of intensity harder than most before they overtrain. If you resemble Hans and Franz or if you feel you are not getting the results your efforts deserve, reevaluate your use of forced reps. When you feel yourself not lifting any of the weight on a forced rep, stop the set. Keep your safety and the safety of your lifting team in mind. Don't try a set or rep with a weight that is just too heavy for both of you to lift. Consider getting an extra helper. If gym members scatter when you do your benches, or you hear the word 'dork' used when you come into the gym, reconsider your team play.

WORKOUT of the Month

The following is a squat training cycle that should help a novice to intermediate powerlifter make some modest gains. It is written for a 600 pound squatter and numbers can be adjusted by multiplying percentages to your own max. Before I get into percentages and poundages, there are a few basic principles that I hold very dearly that are necessary in order to be a good squatter. First, back strength is essential to staying in position while squatting. In particular, lower back and erector strength. Second, your feet and glutes must be in line with the bar so all three points are pushing together. This is usually accomplished by widening your stance. Third, leg presses are not necessary, as there is no transfer of strength. Finally, don't spend a lot of time doing extensions and leg curls.

This training cycle is a 10 week progressive training cycle and should be done in the middle of the week in between your bench and deadlift workouts. I do not believe in training the deadlift and squat on the same day.

For the assistance exercises, some of these should be performed on your deadlift day and some on your squat day. Pick the ones that you like best to do after each deadlift and squat workout and make sure the assistance exercises are performed once per week. My reasoning for doing the Smith Machine squats is that I feel the specific movement needs to be trained and that the Smith squat is the closest movement to doing that. In addition, it takes added strain off so you don't have to balance the weight. The only drawback is -- if you are a heavyweight like me -- getting into the machine is less than fun.

Remember, if you are not making progress, you need to evaluate your calorie intake, the amount of rest you are getting at night and the actual poundages you are using. If the poundages are being achieved easily on this program then do not alter them. However, if the poundages are too difficult then slightly modify them and lower the weight.

Week 1: Squats 135x8, 185x5, 225x5, 315x5, 380x1 (on this set the minimum # of reps is 1 but you should try to get at least 3) Use

A new concept in weight training instruction. A workout by workout, set by set, rep by rep workout plan, with exact training poundages specified over the entire span of a strength training cycle, laid out for you by a top Powerlifting authority. Each month, a different lift is analyzed. For those of different strength levels than the starting poundage specified, simply increase or decrease the training weights in direct proportion. For example, if your lift is 400, and a starting lift for the program is 500, multiply the training poundages by .8 (400 divided by 500); if your lift is 600, multiply the poundages specified by 1.2 (600 divided by 500)

WPO, What's Next?

If you haven't been convinced yet that the WPO is the real deal and the new era in professional powerlifting, let me bring you up to speed on how the WPO is rapidly evolving into first class professional sport. Since the May 20th contest there has been a buzz in the air because the first ever WPO show was such a huge success and is being perceived as an unprecedented event. Underdog Productions did a fantastic job to say the least; the stage area and lifting platform were dynamic. The pyrotechnics and smoke made it very exciting during world record attempts, the Huge Iron Dancers and Card Girls were hot, the lifters got what they were promised if they performed well (MONEY!!!), and most importantly the lifting was first rate and the judging very fair and consistent. These factors alone are governing the WPO's explosive interest and the phone is ringing off the hook down at Huge Iron. E-mail comes in every day from lifters around the World inquiring, what's next? I'll tell you what's next, WPO lifting will be aired on television this August/September on a major network. The September 9th WPO Bench Bash for Cash is getting unbelievable response due to the success of the May 20th contest. During the WPC World Championships in Las Vegas this November 9th-19th at the Plaza Hotel there will be a pro division incorporated into the WPC contest, sanctioned WPO. There will be cash prizes for both men and women's open classes for powerlifting only! There will be no Super Open division so the money will be distributed to the top three totals over 198, top three totals under 198 for men. As promised, because I am not a chauvinist and I don't make statements that I can't back up, there will be money for the women's open classes at some time in the WPO. That time is now! Five places will be given to the women for the top five highest totals in Las Vegas as well. I will disclose the denominations in the September issue of PL USA for both the Men and Women. The winners will be determined straight up - top totals for open men and women, no formula! There will be at least two cameramen on site taping the day's lifting feats so it can be used for future WPO footage on television. You may only compete for the money if you are qualified in the men's or women's WPC open classes. This professional invite is open to all the countries, keep in mind you must be a WPC open powerlifter to compete in the pro division. There will be no pro bench press! If the lifter wishes to compete in the pro division all that will be required is the athlete purchase a WPO card for $25.00. This will allow the lifter to compete for the WPC World Championship in their class, in addition have a shot at winning some decent money as well. The athlete will not have to lift twice in order to compete in the pro division; score will be kept for the pro division in conjunction with the WPC contest. That will wrap it up for the WPO 2000 calendar, and if you thought 2000 was good wait until 2001.

I will elaborate on the 2001 WPO lifting calendar at the end of this article, but first I would like to comment on the immature people that have done nothing for the sport but keep it in the cellar where it has always been. It is unfortunate that there are still so-called political figureheads in the sport that find Professional Powerlifting infringes on their amateur federations. There have been a few lifters that were banned from USA Powerlifting Nationals this year, because they won and accepted money at the WPO contest May 20th in Daytona Beach. Believe me, this has nothing to do with some amateur/pro breach of contract, keep in mind that we pay to enter the contest we compete in no matter what the level of competition. This factor alone to me totally negates the sports authenticity and under no circumstance gives any federation the right to impose sanctions on any lifters no matter what the situation. I find it disappointing that some federation's political fig-ureheads and lifters for that matter still find it necessary to talk despairingly about the WPO or me personally that don't even know me. The fact of the matter is the WPO is for real and either you're with me or you are not, because as I stated before nobody will get in my way and nothing will stop me from succeeding. These closed minded so called powers that be in certain federations that strangle the sport instead of let it grow are the very reason the sport is virtually unknown to the public. No matter how you slice it what I'm doing for this sport is long overdue and if I wasn't as fortunate as I am I would want nothing more but to be a professional powerlifter as my profession. I also would be 100% behind whoever was making the effort for the good of the sport. Sadly this is not the case for many heads of federations and some of the lifters too. All powerlifters are victim to the current format that has always existed in our sport. What I mean by that is no one knows any different because that is the way it has always been. The lifter pays to enter the contest, pays to travel to the contest, pays for all their food, pays for their lodging, and many other incidentals that other amateur and pro athletes never have to pay for in other sports. Do you think Joe Montana paid to play on Super Bowl against the Bengals? Do you think there wasn't a ham sandwich or whatever the hell Joe wanted at any given moment. If you dissect my sarcasm you will see that my point is a professional athletes get everything paid for and some amateur athletes as well.

Why shouldn't powerlifting at the highest level be the exact same way! That is what I am doing with the WPO making it a first class Professional sport just like any other where the athlete comes first period! If you are a lifter or a political figurehead in the sport and you are against my Professional Federation and me then you are in my view an antichrist of the sport. There are many rumors about the WPO contest on May 20th and they all stem from the greatest weakness of human emotion, jealousy!!! So what if there were only 20 lifters in the contest! They were all elite lifters to say the least and the majority of them were very recognizable names in the sport, Jesse Kellum, Steve Goggins, Wade Hooper, Anthony Clark, and Gary Frank, Beau Moore, and Anthony Conyers just to name a few. Some did well, some did not, but at least all the lifters who participated had the guts to try something new and they will always be the first WPO powerlifting heroes that the world will see. Many other lifters said they were definitely coming, lifters who even came to the qualifier, but when it's time to PUT UP or SHUT UP for the big bucks a certain few didn't show. Regardless, I will hold a special place for all the lifters who came to support me and my venture for the good of powerlifting and made it an unbelievable first time event. The contest footage is spectacular, the clarity is unreal, and it makes a very entertaining production. One thing is for certain that the lifters who are in the show will be perceived in the American public's eye as the premier lifters in the world. In America it is said "you aren't anything to anybody unless you are on Television" and this is the exact reason that the WPO will be a legitimate Professional Sport in today's society. When the Smith Family turns on WPO Powerlifting after Sunday dinner and they see Jesse Kellum total what most heavyweights total at 198 lbs., witness a 700 lb. bench press or a 1000 lb. squat, see legitimate world records get broken by giant men, only then will powerlifting have reached its pinnacle. At that time, nothing else will matter, because powerlifters will be perceived as Gods for moving insurmountable masses of steel that only individuals who possess superhuman strength can achieve and be appreciated by the entire free world!

It is understandable that people have reservations about trying something new for the first time. This fear that many people have is common in all facets of life and I, too, am guilty as well of fearing change. Maybe the upcoming 2001 WPO powerlifting series of contests might help the hesitant decide if they want to be part of the new era in powerlifting. There will be three major contests that will be taped for television in 2001 and they will be held at Universal Studios in Orlando, FL. The money will increase substantially by weight class and Super Open class. The amounts will be as follows 1st place by class $10,000, 2nd place by class $5,000, 3rd place by class $1,000, 132-SHW. The Super Open Titles for LWT, MWT, SHW, will be worth at least $25,000 and could be as high as $50,000 for each Title. It is almost certain that a major corporation will sponsor WPO and disburse large amounts of money to cover the huge dollar amounts that will be paid out to the athletes. Since the new venue is Universal Studios Orlando the likelihood of a big sponsor is almost a given. Underdog Productions is going full steam ahead and they have unbelievable rapport and contacts with the right people in the business. The WPO is your best option to be perceived as the Iron Athlete you dream of being and make substantial money to cushion the lifter's personal expenditures. If you find it necessary to bash the WPO instead of embracing it then that will be your choice. I want to wish all powerlifting pessimists good luck and happy commiserating with each other because your negativity is the exact reason this sport has gone nowhere. As I said before "either you're with me or you are not" and if you're not, it is of no concern to me because the WPO is the real deal. The reality is when the American Public turns the television on and they hear a TV personality say "live from Universal Studios WPO Professional Powerlifting at its best" everything else will be insignificant.

Sincerely, your WPO president,
Kieran Kidder

WPO EQUIPMENT UPDATE. Unfortunately, when the WPO rulebook was printed somehow the old format was printed instead of the new format and all the changes that were made were not printed. The end result was the majority of the rule changes that I made light of in Powerlifting USA did not get printed in the new WPO rule book. Even though we realized the mistakes before the contest, we didn't have enough time to have the rules reprinted for May 20th. None the less, we still enforced the rules and Russ Barlow, who is the WPO technical director, personally inspected every piece of equipment. Russ did a fantastic job and approving and disapproving equipment. These correct rule changes will be rectified and available to lifters at the Sept. 9th WPO Bench for Cash. The bench press shirt rules this September 9th are either double polyester or double denim with only one patch on the exterior of the shirt no bigger than 4"x4" or 8" in circumference. In the future pending on equipment technology advancement or regression there could be rule changes. The lifter will always be kept abreast of any situation that might arise in the WPO via hugeiron.com or PL USA.

Last time I asked you, "What would be the ultimate physical limitation?" On 11/29/99, it began for lifter Colt Wynn. I got an e-mail from his dad (Rich Wynn) around Christmas 1999. With his permission, here is most of it:

My 14-year-old son, Colt fell from a tree stand while hunting on November the 29th. He broke his back and is now paralyzed from the waist down. It has been the toughest thing I have ever dealt with in my life. I won't go into a lot of details. Colt just started rehab. He has been a true pillar of strength and his spirit has never been broken. I'm very proud of him. As I watch him struggle in rehab the tears roll and my heart is ripped from my chest. He never gives up! Learning to sit up was a major victory. But every other day he still works out. Yes, with a broken back he lays in bed and does Dumbbell Presses, Flyes, and Tricep extensions. He is now sitting up in his wheelchair doing curls as well. He loves to hunt and lift! The Rehab Unit asked me to bring in my dumbbells because they did not have dumbbells heavy enough to accommodate him! Needless to say he was very proud of that! Anyway I have ordered two of your sweat shirts for him because believe me rehab is the true definition of "The House of Pain." I have learned more about courage from Colt in the last month than I would have learned in a lifetime. He is my son and also my hero. And when people you know don't feel like working out - tell them to be thankful they can!

I think that might qualify as the ultimate physical limitation. I was inspired, and also intrigued to know more details. Rich told me of chatting with his son on 11/28/99, discussing the opening day of Ohio gun season. The next time he saw his son, Colt could not move his legs. The hospital was not prepared for their indomitable spirit:

While fighting a bladder infection and waiting for surgery Colt realized his upper body strength would mean everything when it came to rehab and getting on with this life. So he asked the Doctor about lifting weights. The Doctor told him it was a muscular movement, it would not effect the spi-

The "BEFORE" Picture Colt, just starting to work out (9/18/99)

"the spirited workhorse" ... Colt doing flyes in his hospital bed, prior to surgery (12/16/99)

nal column, and encouraged Colt to workout so he would be better prepared for rehab after surgery.

So we contacted the rehab unit and they sent a rehab nurse to Colt's room with a set of 10-lb.

dumbbells. The rehab nurse was going to advise us on a work out routine. Needless to say she was going to hold us back. And those 10 lb. dumbbells were the biggest the rehab unit had so we had to bring our own.

So we got started!! Yes, Colt was lifting with a broken back, before surgery. You would have enjoyed seeing the expression on people's faces when they would come to the room and Colt would be doing flies with a broken back, me in his face, and the sweat rolling. Rick, we have always been about intensity. We believe we can accomplish more in a half-hour of hard work than most guys that go in the gym and spend two hours. When I started working out with the boys I knew we had to keep it short and fun, but we had to go after it with a vengeance. The same thing applied in the hospital. Colt knows our style and he was ready to get after it. Needless to say the hospital personnel respected our work ethic and they were supportive. Our routine would consist of 3 sets per exercise. The first set would be a warm up set and the second and third set would be to failure. If Colt could do more than 12 reps for the last two sets we would move up in weight. If he could not do more than six reps for either set we would move down in weight. Less than six reps on either the second or third set would prove to be heavy. We kept records so we could chart his progress. Keeping track and setting new goals kept us motivated and allowed us to realize we were making progress. Colt worked out three days a week.

Colt's workout would start with flyes, then dumbbell press and finish chest with a large rubberband (rehab furnished it) he would do three sets of flyes with concentration on form with a very slow reps. Then we would move to triceps extensions (using dumbbells, lying on his back, like a skull crusher) then he would finish while sitting up in bed and doing a triceps push-up. He did not get a lot of range of motion but he got a great burn. We knew his triceps would be his mode of transportation in the weeks to come. After triceps he would finish with curls. Three sets to absolutely destroy the biceps. That was it! Never more than a minute's rest between sets and three minutes between body parts. We were that critical with times. It helped us stay focused. He progresses rapidly. I was really proud of his kick butt attitude. It may not sound like much but try it with intensity and the correct weight and you will agree it works. Oh! If you try it you can leave out the broken back part! (smile)

Finally it was time for surgery!! Colt's weight had dropped from 150 lbs to 120 lbs. Although he had dropped a lot of body weight he had worked to keep his strength up and his spirit was remarkable. Let's get on with this fight was Colt's attitude. He taught me more about courage in 7 weeks than I ever would have learned in a lifetime. I often say they broke his back but they never broke his spirit. I'm very proud to be his father!

Surgery was 11 hours total. The doctors repaired his back with two eight-inch rods, eight screws and a cross-link right at the break. The repair formed the letter H in his back. Colt will be in a back brace for three months and it will take more than a year for the bone to fuse and the surgery to be healed. He can remove his back brace if he is lying down with support under his back. As in doing flies or dumbbell presses. So ten days after surgery it was time to start rehab and get back after the weights. And he got right back after it. Colt never dropped his head. He was determined to fight a good fight and he did just that! When he entered rehab they forecasted his release would be in the middle of February. If he worked hard maybe the first of February. Colt was released the middle of January. The rehab team and the Doctors referred to him as the spirited workhorse of rehab. They said he was unequalled to anyone they had experienced before. The Doctor said his early release was related to his spirit and his tremendous upper body strength, and by the time of his release he was pressing 50 lb. dumbbells. A great increase from the 25 lb. dumbbells he started with. He was curling 30 lbs when we left the hospital. He is gaining his weight back and still getting stronger.

Colt entered rehab the day after Christmas and was released on the 19th of January. Colt was back in school the 24th of January and he is doing well. At 14 years of age he has proven to be quite a young man. And Colt often tells his brother "when you think you are too tired to do squats - be glad you can." You see Rich, Colt's older brother Adam won the Ohio High School Powerlifting Championships at 175 lbs., 16 years old as a sophomore last year and set a new state record and tied one. Adam benched 340 lbs, squatted 525 lbs and deadlifted 485 lbs. Colt was hoping to compete along side his brother in this year's competition. I'm telling you Rich, Colt may be sitting in a wheelchair but he stands mighty tall. And I often say when I grow up I hope I'm half the man he has proven to be.

Thanks, Rich, for sharing Colt's story with us. If it doesn't make us thankful for the blessings God has given us; something is wrong with us. Some of us are alive only because it is illegal to kill us. We talk instead of lifting. We whine instead of training. Other people just keep on lifting, getting stronger all the time. Even with a broken back.

Physical limitations (genetic or injury-related) are the MAIN excuse for not working out. Weak knees, bad back, etc. How many people have told you they would compete except for their knees /back, etc.

The last story I wrote for PL

USA had heartwarming stories about 3 different people who came back from serious injuries. Thomas Jefferson said, "Nothing gives one person so much advantage over another as to remain always cool and unruffled under all circumstances." I love this idea!

Arthur Ashe didn't powerlift, and he may not have even lifted weights for all I know, but he didn't whine either. He said, "You've got to get to the stage in life where going for it is more important than winning or losing." Even a tennis player can get something right every now and then.

What were the results of Colt's training? I can't say it better than Rich: He beat rehab by one month of the forecasted date. The rehab team referred to him as the spirited workhorse of rehab. Due to his spirit and his upper body strength he beat rehab by a month. Medically nothing has changed. He still feels nothing below his bellybutton. Our motto is: Prepare for the worst and pray for the best.

Why you should attend this event:

- 1) Nugget Hotel - (Huge - Two 26 Story Towers and almost 1700 rooms)
 - A) 45 minutes from Lake Tahoe, B) Indoor olympic pool with waterfalls, 11 Jacuzzis, Aspen Trees and Cherry Trees, C) Nine world class restaurants including a $10 buffet that won The Top Hotel award in the country for quality food, D) Free 10 minute shuttle ride from the airport, E) 20,000 sq. ft. ballroom with a 1200 sq. ft. warmup area, F) A $70 room rate for rooms that are extremely plush and a great view of the Sierra Nevada mountains.
 - 2) Judging that's not unreasonably strict and not loose.
 - 3) Judges are required to tell a lifter what he or she did wrong, so they can make adjustments.
 - 4) Drug Testing - the 13 highest bench & deadlift coefficients for men and 7 highest for women - a total of 40 tests.
 - 5) At least 10 lifters will bench 600# and possibly two or three will bench over 700#.
 - 6) Trophies - very classy loving cups. 1st place cups weigh 6#. 2nd & 3rd are the same, but are a little smaller than 1st. 4th & 5th get beautiful plaques and 6th & 7th get 4" in diameter Niels Anderson sculptured medals.

Also, pictures of all lifters who hold world records and a bio on them as well and, in order - by weight class and division, the name of every lifter and their hometown.
 - 8) The lifting platform will be a huge 3 ft. high rock concert type stage with great lighting.
 - 9) Gus Rethwisch - competed in the World's Strongest Man contest, the Strongbow Strongman Contest, has squatted 905 with a single ply squat suit, deadlifted over 800# in 12 contests including 865 without a deadlift suit or knee wraps and benched 523 without a shirt. Best total was 2281. Entered 12 National AAU & USPF meets from 1974-1985. Promoted 97 contests from 1977 to the present. Is the only promoter to have a 1/2 hour special on powerlifting on ESPN (1988). Is the only independent promoter to have a 1/2 hour special on a major network (CBS 1979). He has the highest attendance ever at a strictly powerlifting meet - 4,026 at the 1978 Hawaii Record Breakers in Honolulu. He wasn't the best powerlifter, but he paid his dues. He wasn't the best powerlifting promoter (Larry Pacifico and John Inzer are) but he puts on a good meet and learns from his mistakes. His main philosophy "If the lifter doesn't have a good experience, he won't be back."

198					S. Pektol	672	424	688	1785	DATELINE: Modesto, CA: Records fell at the USAPL California State Powerlifting Championships. The meet took place at the Fitness Choice in sunny Modesto. The club welcomed our group of powerlifters and turned out to be an excellent venue with plenty of space for warm-ups and lifting, an onsite snack bar, showers and plenty of parking! The staff was friendly and helpful and made our meet a pleasant experience! The lifting started out Saturday with some fine lifting by the women and teenage men. 15 year old June Andrews proved that fine deadlifting runs in the family by capping off a 9 for 9 day with a 100 kilo deadlift in the 148's! June's mom Kathy had a little bit of an off day, going 4 for 8 but still managed to set State Master records with her opening squat, deadlift. These were good enough to garner her the total record as well! Nell Mucha and Irene Conway each in their first meets managed to set some Masters records. Irene started off her powerlifting career with a great 9 for 9 day! Finally, Women's Best Lifter, Tammi Callahan set all new submaster records in her first 3 lift meet and is only about 22 kilos away from the Open Total record and 2.5 kilos from the bench record! Good luck at Bench Nationals, Tammi Nicolas Cirigliano was part of our second "family affair." Son of longtime lifter Rich C., Nicolas had a 6 for 9 day in his first outing and showed signs of the Cirigliano deadlift prowess with an almost 2X bodyweight pull at 14 years of age. Fellow teen lifter, Jason Rangel, set state deadlift and total records and showed some excellent form in all three lifts. His dad Chris another longtime California lifter who scared me on more than one occasion when I was a 1984, coached Jason! Time to get back on the platform Christ! You are missed. Hayward "Woody" Blake, out of Alameda's Iron Island Gym, had a great 8 for 9 day in the 148 14-15 class. Erik Wagner, was another lifter with great technique in the teen division. He satisfied the judges 9 times to finish a perfect day! Finally, our last teen lifter, animated Nick Luiz, attacked the bar on every lift and pulled a 507 deadlift at 16 years of age and 168 lbs. bodyweight. In the juniors, Steve Newman captured 3 state records at 148. Competition was fierce in the Junior 165 pound class. Andrew Schober battled well with some balanced lifting, but it wasn't quite enough to overcome the lifting of Andrew Eastham, who added a state record bench press to his victory! The junior 181s was a dogfight. Jose Juarez went 9 for 9 and showed some great potential. Greg Gibson hit a huge 275.5 squat on his third attempt stay in the meet and finished second. However, many times State Champion Shawn Geernaert was not to be denied. In his first meet as a Junior, Shawn destroyed state records in the bench, deadlift and total. He's only 20 and will only get better! He finished as Teen/Junior best lifter of the meet. Jon Shapiro, at 139 lbs. had an 8 for 9 day at 148 to finish second. IPF World Bench Team Member, Lance Slaughter, needed to qualify for Men's Nationals in Chicago and did so with a win here. On the way he set all new submaster 148 records as well as an open bench record! Five lifters vied for the 165 open crown. Joseph Vanderveld and Frank Mulhair took 5th and 4th, respectively. Mark Squires took third with a solid 550 kg total. In second was 45 year old Rich Cirigliano and the winner by a 60 kilo margin was Allen Franks of San Diego. Allan was coached by Chris "TOO STRONG" Turner so it was no surprise he had the biggest deadlift of the class. The 181 Open class had the makings of a real battle. The class featured the 1999 181 Open Champion Greg Buffington facing the 1998 181 Open Champ, Phil Cannizzaro as well as the 1999 181 Novice Champion, Ray Pacello. Bragging rights for 2000 would be decided on this day. Ray lifted very well. In only his second meet, he went 9 for 9, hit PRs in every lift and added almost 100 lbs. to his total from last year. Greg, a Napa County Sheriff, was able to hold off Ray's squat attack with a better bench and a matching deadlift. Phil Cannizzaro is a beast. He has missed some lifting time with a new baby at home and was a little rusty in the squat, making only one lift. He is from San Jose, though and that can only mean one thing ... Big Bench. Phil hit a 424 lb. bench and never looked back. His deadlift preserved the victory and gave him bragging rights for the next 12 months. Next year will be interesting. If Ray keeps improving and Greg gets that pull up a bit and Shawn competes in the Open ... we should see another great battle. Our lightweight masters finished off the first day of lifting. We only had 9 masters on day one but they burned up the old record books at a rapid pace. Homie Shivalde turned 50 this year and celebrated by setting all the records in his new division. Homie's controlled, deliberate lifting impressed the judges so much that I heard one ref comment that he was "easy to judge!" Edgar Martinez came back to the platform after some time off and set a state record in the squat. Unfortunately for Edgar, Rich Cirigliano was in the same class and upped the record minutes later. Rich also hit a Master 2 state record bench press and total to win the class! Larry Duran also came back from a long absence from the platform to capture the master 4 165 crown. Larry set new State Records in the squat, deadlift and total to capture the Masters Lightweight Best Lifter Crown. Due to a computer problem, we had a mix-up and thought that Rich was the winner on Saturday. The problem was discovered and Larry's awards are on the way! The last record set on the day was Bob Accosta. Bob tore up the books with state records in all three lifts and the total! Congratulations, Bob! Did I mention that Bob was 75 years young? Sunday picked up where Saturday left off. Joe Matteo hit a big 600-lb. squat as a Junior 220 for a State record and the win. Adrian Johnson overcame a 70 lb. subtotal deficit at the subtotal to PULL OUT the win in the Open 198s. Scott Burgess traveled in from Nevada to compete with us. He was rewarded for his efforts with 3rd place in the Open 220s. In second, was 56 year old Doug Dienelt from Davis, California. Doug hit his first 400 bench and a PR 622 deadlift (both of which were Master 4 records) and is gearing up for Master's Nationals. Tony Falbo, 2nd place last year, finally put it all together and hit on all cylinders to win the class. He has been at it for years and hasn't been able to put all his best lifts together on the same day for a while. I've seen him frustrated and upset when his squat was up but his bench was off or his deadlift was up but his squat was off. He kept going back to the gym and coming back stronger. This was his year and he put together 9 good attempts and got his first 400+ bench in a meet. He was all smiles after this session. I could almost see the monkey jump off his back. Congratulations, Tony. You deserved it! Ken Armstrong, in his first meet, put together a great 8 for 9 day and is now a REAL powerlifter! Way to go Ken. When I saw that John Planas was coached by Lance Slaughter, I knew he'd bench big but I wasn't ready for his 677 squat. He blew it up like it was nothing and then almost got 688. He followed that with a 485 bench and a 600 pull to take the 242s. Mike Kautz had a good day in be squats but, unfortunately, misfired in the bench and bombed out. Mike is a fighter, though, and is already qualified for Nationals where I'll bet he'll up the records he already owns. Mike Koufos, who normally puts on the State Meet, celebrated his year off, by going 9 for 9! Tom Torres moved up a class and set some submaster 220 records. With no Nick Best to contend with this year, Big Bruce Lee captured the Men's Open Heavy Best Lifter award with some powerful lifting, including an Open State record in the Bench to join all the other Records he owns in the Open 319s. Keith Kamemolo took second in the Open 198s but won the Master 1 198s and set state records in the Squat, Bench and Total. 70-Year-old Austin DeMello made the long drive up to lift with us and returned home with a 6 for 9 day to his credit! 56 year old Ron Pagal made it to his 4th decade of competitive powerlifting in this meet. He was to have been joined by lifting buddy, Jeff Hillstrom, also in his 4th decade of competition. Unfortunately, Jeff was hit by a car a week out from the meet and couldn't attend. Best wished on a speedy recovery to Jeff. Another lifter returning to the platform after a long absence was 62 year old Omar Bruce. Omar decided to compete only a few weeks out after working through some shoulder problems. It was almost funny to watch Omar play with weights that were far below his capacity. Omar's squats were all met with shouts of "Hey Omar, PUT SOME WEIGHT ON THE BAR!" Omar set state records in all three lifts and will destroy those in his next outing. I think he's got the competitive bug back! Joining Omar in this comeback meet was veteran lifter Ronnel Spikes. Ron is a fixture in California powerlifting and has been missed the last couple of years. Always helpful to new lifters and a pleasure to be around, it was great to see him back on the platform. Ron didn't miss a beat during his time off. He popped good lift after good lift and wound up going 9 for 9 in his comeback while setting state Master 4 275 records with EVERY lift. Ron made a point of telling me that he light 275 and the weigh in sheet bears it out. He tipped the scales at a svelte 255 and plans to get back to his normal 242 lb. class soon. Sam Pektor made the trip down from Oregon to grace us with his presence. A competitor in every sense of the word, Sam good-naturedly reminded me, as he walked off the platform, that his last pull was higher than my last pull in Oregon a few weeks prior.... Hey Sam, as Arnold said "I'll be back!" Finally, when all was said and done Bruce Lee was again the best lifter, this time for Men's Master Heavyweight. Bruce has the distinction of holding all the 319 state records in the Open, Submaster and Master 1 categories. He shows no signs of slowing down either so you Master 2 guys have about 3 years to push those records up as high as you can. No meet can run without a good staff and crew and this was no exception! Betty Lee and Aaron Pele showed up both days and worked the score table for us. Fred Kendall announced Sunday, Dave Cummerow was like a right hand as committee director and took care of all the on site details since the meet site was 90 minutes from my house. When we discovered that a previously working switch was no longer working... Dave was at Home Depot at 6 am looking for a replacement. Dave's wife, Marina was going to compete but was injured. Instead, she worked all weekend to make the meet lifters feel welcome. My training partner, Tim Walker, went above and beyond the call of duty. He helped me load the equipment, helped set up, helped spot and load AND LIFTED on Saturday. He was so tired that he took a nap after the benches and almost forgot to pull. Then after all that, he helped pack up and unload. Thanks Tim! Mike Mooney drove down from Oregon to ref both days. Dr. Howard Budwin, Joe Randazzo, Chet Lund, and Doug Dienelt filled out our referee crew. I hope I didn't miss anyone. It was really a blur for me. We also got a lot of help from the gym staff, Tom Brenda, Phil Madriaga and the spotters who were introduced to PLing the hard way. We got a lot of positive feedback on the gym as a nice venue AND the gym was so impressed with the lifters that they invited us back! So, thanks to the lifters for making a positive impression. A hearty thanks to the Big Man from Illinois, John Binkowski. We flew Bink out to put on a training seminar Saturday Night. The airline, screwed up (I won't name them but their initials are TWA) and was so late that he missed his connecting flight. He didn't get to bed until about 3:30 am. You never would have known it! Bink showed up and pitched in with the paperwork, schmoozed with the lifters and then put on a very informative seminar that night. The big guy is also fun to be around. Oh, I must also thank my wife Not only, for putting up with me - you can only imagine what a job that is - but also for picking Bink up at SFO and transporting him to Modesto at about 1 am. Finally, must thank our generous sponsors. Our best lifters left loaded down with prizes. As usual, John Inzer of Inzer Advance Designs came through in a big way for me. All of our best lifters received some great Inzer lifting gear! In addition, a big surprise came from Allan Franks of Nutritional Technologies, Inc. He showed up with NTI Nitro Bars (very tasty) for the lifters and Best Lifter Gift Certificates! Rick Brewer and House of Pain IronWear also pitched in with attractive Staff Shirts and Best Lifter Prizes! In addition, our Day One lifter with the Highest Formula total walked out with a House of Pain Gift Certificate! Last but not least, Cytopro (makers of my new favorite supplement Muscle Milk) provided product samples. The best lifters had a hard time carrying all the loot home, especially Bruce Lee who won both the Open Heavy Best Lifter AND the Master Heavy Best Lifter Awards. In addition, Bruce had the highest formula total on day 2. That earned him a Free Pair of Inzer Power Shoes, courtesy of Inzer Advance Designs! Again, thanks to all who contributed to making this meet a success! (Thanks to USAPL for the meet results).

*=State record. This contest was primarily setup in the state of Pennsylvania to replace several other USAPL contests that lifters were planning on qualifying at. Even though this was just a qualifying contest many lifters showed with some very good numbers. Some highlights of some good lifts included Ruth Snyder a 97 lbs. powerhouse came and left her mark breaking the state record on her way to a 440 lbs. total, while taking away best lifter in the female class. Another dominate female lifter was master Carol Winklebech. She broke master records in every event and finished with a 475 lbs. total in the 123 lbs. weight class. In the event several Penn State and Pittsburgh students qualified for USALE Collegiate Nationals. Those qualifying from Pittsburgh included Dan Soliman, Jeffery Searle and Marc Smolinski. Those qualifying from Penn State included Erik Steiner, Sarah Barr and Jeff Finklestein. The Open Men's class ended up being quite a spectator friendly event. The meet had four lifters squat over 600 and two over 7! The best lifter in the Men's division Mike Maslrean at the 198 lbs. class totaled his way to an easy 1765 lbs. total. The big boy of the contest Dennis "Niko" Hulslander showed up with gear! This 340 lb. man packs a punch without equipment, but now for the

One KILOGRAM equals 2.2046 Pounds

For a quick approximation, take the amount in kilos and double it, then add 10 percent of the doubled amount. For example, to convert 115 kilos, double the amount (230) and add 10 percent of the doubled amount (23) for a total of 253, which is the conversion of 115 kilograms to 253 pounds.

St. Mary's Health & Recreation held the American Powerlifting Association PA State Bench and Deadlift Championships. There was a good turnout despite the icy weather conditions. Competitors came from all over Pennsylvania and the bordering states. There were 18 records set at this year's meet. There were also three teams competing with MascoTech coming out on top. Congratulations to all of the lifters for a job well done! (Thanks to Ken Mountain for providing these competition results)

NOTE: * Denotes record attempt. Although the turnout was light for this Memorial Day weekend event quality of lifting was very high with several records being set. Brooke Bourg of Louisiana was competing for her first time ever and set several Louisiana state records. The teenage lifters were fantastic with John Bider and Chase Collier setting both Texas and World records. Bider, at 17 years of age, performed a flawless 610 squat at 198 bodyweight! At 20 years of age, John Mendoza won the best lifter award in the full power meet just missing a deadlift of 700 at a bodyweight of 191.5 pounds. Dan Dumoit set more Texas and World records. At 69 years, young Dan continues to fascinate the audiences. At 64 years, young Jim Royce won the bench event and placed second in the full power. Jim just began training and this was his first meet ever. James Chaffin, of Bossier City, Louisiana, smoked 525 in the bench. He weighed 242 even and it was obvious he had more in him. James went home with the Best Lifter award for the bench press. At 45 year old, Sheldon Weingust set some new records with a 325 bench at 141.75 bodyweight. Although a master lifter, Tom McCullough, chose to compete in the open and set Texas records and, also, a new Master World Record with a flawless 730 deadlift. In the Super, Shawn Woelk benched 570 and just missed 600. This was a great meet and special thanks are in order for all the referee's, spotters, loaders, and especially Anthony Clark for hosting a great event. (Thanks to Scott Taylor for providing the results).

Brooke Bourg of Louisiana squatting 325 at Anthony Clark's APA Powerhouse Open (Scott Taylor)

Rogers was the best of 3 @ 220. Things looked tight between him and Eric Maroscher through the first two lifts. Maroscher won the SQ duel 622 to 600. Then Rogers took over the lead pressing 435 to Eric's 402. The deadlift showed Roger's superiority as he finished up a WR 666 for 1703 TOT. Maroscher got a 611 opener by for 1636. Dan Jesolva of the L.A.L.C team hit a PR 556, and got a 407 BP opener on his way to a third place finish. Dan suffered a slight bicep tear on his 3rd successful pull with 589, but completed it anyway - 1554 TOT - another personal best. At 242 victory was achieved by George Rada. The ham-armed sparkplug of the L.A. team managed a 584 PR SQ. Rada's BP's are like snowflakes - no two are identical, but he got a real beauty on his 3rd - TOT 1592 - thanks to his 567 DL 3rd. Kim sandwiched his 314 BP between twin 551 SQ and DL bookends for 1416 sum - 2nd place. It was bad luck for contender Alex Klest who SQ'd a good 749, but fell by the wayside trying a 523 BP three times unsuccessfully. Big Jay Gibson of Kentucky, in his very first meet, surprised everyone. He was shallow with his 661 SQ opener, but went to 688 and sat lower - good. The spotters had to rescue him on his big 744 try, which pinned him. He missed a 407 BP on a technical error, then increased to 441 and got it. Then - surprise of surprises - he went clear up to 562, and got it! Jay finished the day with 1752 and the upset win. I say upset because his opponent was 450 lb. behemoth Steve Brodsky. Steve was high 3 times with an 804 SQ and became a bombout statistic.

I must mention a couple of APF superstars who were guest lifters tuning up for the APF Seniors three weeks out: Matt Zweng hit an 804 SQ 2nd @ 212 but was ruled out with 832 when he lost balance and bailed out. He hit a 523 BP easily, but didn't negotiate his 551 tries. Thanks to his improved DL (677 PR) Matt also hit a lifetime best 2006 TOT and will do more at the Seniors. Paul Urchik, at 242 the defending APF Srs. and WPC World Champ, looked sharp as a tack. He hit a beautiful low 909 SQ, and also got a PR 545 BP. He did just an opener 705 DL, waiving the other two. A 2160 TOT looks like he's primed for an outstanding performance.

All the women, a spirited bunch, lifted on Saturday. In the Jrs: Taline Muskat @

114 made 5 good attempts (622). This earned her the Best Jr. Award. Jessica Splitter earned the 148 win with a 710 TOT. Among the submasters, Saba Wilson got top spot @ 123. After doing her 231 SQ over, she had no more misses for a 672 TOT. Frances Watson took runner-up. Among the three entries at 148, Pascale Lercange (Bedford, OH - and wife to meet promoter Gary Benford) ran away with first place - 407, 237, 424 and a 1069 TOT. Charming Pascale is living proof that strength and beauty goes hand in hand. Runnerup Norma Garcia, of Sacramento, CA, had a great day, eclipsing her own best with a 363 SQ and an 865 TOT. Renata DeFelice, Roseville, MI, was fresh off her AAPF National win @ 132 a few weeks before. Here she posted a fine 325 SQ and hit a PR 303 DL for third. Kim Pfeifer, Oakhurst, CA, shattered 3 CA SM records @ 165: 363 SQ, BP 154 and 843 TOT. Her SQ & TOT were CA State Open marks as well. Patti Carson of Chaparral, NM repeated her 181 win from last year. Her warm smile always lights up my heart. MASTERS: 40-44: Nadine Baker from Bogart, GA (@ 97) repeated last year's win. She got the 220 SQ which had previously eluded her, and cruised to a fine 650 TOT. This won her the Masters Best Lifter Award for a 2nd year in a row. Michelle Kilikouskas, a charming lady from the Los Angeles Club, won at 114 - her very first National title, where she also set 3 APF CA marks: 193 SQ, 242 DL, 540 TOT. Her 110 BP duplicated the existing mark. Mona Overstreet of Murfreesboro, TN had suffered a concussion in an accident. She wasn't feeling her chipper self but qualified for the Worlds with her win and by that time she should be back to full capacity. In the 45-49 group Barbara Fruzyna, Redwood, CA, just turned 45. In her new group she made a clean sweep of all the CA records @ 23. Her new blond hair style makes her look younger than ever.

At : 0-54 Jo Rodefer-Taylor (newly wed) was on a roll @ 97 lbs. She set all new CA Master records, plus Open marks with a 220 DL and 468 TOT. Jo forced up a big 143 SQ. You had to see her never give up on that 110 BP to believe it. Patricia Damon, Portland, ME, successfully renewed her 165 title from last year, improving by 26! At 198 Maris Sternberg opened the new century looking like her vibrant self again. She made a National Record 308 SQ, missed no benches (165), and hoisted a 330 DL for an 804 TOT. She's been a role model and trend setter in APF since its inception: emcee, referee, and athlete. She does it all.

MASTERS - MEN - There was a heavy turnout - 64 in all the age groups. The Masters ran all day Sunday with morning and afternoon sessions. 40-44 group: A. Cyr took the 148s with a good 1267 result. He jumped big after his BP opener (44 lbs. for 2 misses. G. Reichert had a good 606 DL (1482) for the 165 win. Greg Zweig scored 1570 for 181 1st place, but missed a big 650 DL try. Ken Richardson tussled with Lester Maslow at 198. Les maintained a 11 lb. advantage going into the DL. Richardson pulled his 600 to win, then did 622 for 1653. Maslow's best raise was 573 (1614 - 2nd.) Baker, Frein and Owens finished the 198s in that order. Baker's 1466 gave him 3rd. George Pessell defended his 220 title with strength to spare. He had an excellent day succeeding with all 3 SQs (639), hit a 441 BP, and hoisted a 2nd round 661 DL - TOT 1747. Luis Ruiz duplicated George's SQ & D/L numbers, but fell far back in the BP for 1658. Kelly went 9/9 for 3rd place (1421). A lot of heat at 242 - William Barclay had a dream come true: a perfect day. He put the icing on his cake with a 677 DL (1741). John Mazmanian, the caffeine fiend, wouldn't relinquish his throne without a fight. He went for the outright win, and had 705 coming up, but stalled out (1703). Joe Avigliano, 40, the commander in chief of the LA Lifting Club was primed to pump PRs. He's shown outstanding improvement since last year. Joe came in @ 227 improved his TOT a tremendous 253 lbs.! He was successful with all his attempts, but his 439 3rd SQ was denied 2-1 for depth (628, 396, 600, 1625). Bill Nichols @ 275 is a living legend in PL. He wowed the crowd with some breathtaking lifts. An 865 SQ opener was a yo-yo. Up to 942. It was right about there - he came up, but it was denied 2-1. Undaunted he went straight to 1003. He put in right in the hole, started up, but rocked back on his heels. Don't be surprised if Bill makes this lift before the year's over. A shoulder injury that lingers on kept Bill below the 500 BP range (this day). Bill gets the most he can out of his equipment when DLing. He kept his hips in a direct line with his center of gravity in his dive-sumo style, and locked out 771 - TOT 2132. Bill used this meet as a stepping stone to become Sr. National champ once again. Matt

Israelson had BP problems, but pulled a much improved 600 DL just like he's been telling me he would for the past 2 years. You've made a believer - Matt - the 308 champ. Mike Cain took it easy winning the SHW's with 1785, and the biggest BP of the group - 551. Me and training partner Justus Owens got him into his shirt. With all that hair it was easy as pie, it just slid right on.

45-49 Masters: this group began @ 181. Doug Peterson, in this age bracket for the first time, won out with a 1477 TOT. All 3 opponents were close. Ron Egli, back from a torn rotator cuff, had a less prodigious BP, but still hung in there to get 2nd place (1444). Don Graham was breathing down his neck all the way (1438) for 3rd. Russell Dell was 99 lbs. behind Gary Benford @ 198. He proved he can still pull a 622 DL, and became the champion via his lighter body mass (1565 TOT). Nichols was 3rd, while Hanson - well back - finished 4th. At 220, John Black, Cleveland, OH, a former household name in PL engaged A.J. Henderson. Black grunted up a big 705 SQ, but Henderson matched it and then passed John by to win 1642 - 1603. Mr. Lopez was the bronze recipient. Nice Guy Dick Zenzen returned to the platform. He suffered a terrible injury in a roofing accident last year. The surgeons patched him up and here he was. His BP and DL were only token weights due to nerve damage affecting his right hand. He came out a winner and will be at the Worlds again. Dick's a never say die kind of guy. Powerhouse John Florio, 48, of Ohio returned to the APF ranks following a lengthy hiatus. His 799 SQ was picture perfect. He even stood up with 848, but the judges said he wasn't low enough! His 1862 TOT could be subtitled intestinal fortitude. John's runnerup was Mr. Howard Miller. Another great name from the past resurfaced here! Paul Brodeur posted a huge 947 SQ and 2143 TOT 14 years ago. He's back and here hit: 705, 396, 661, 1763. He'll add a lot more to that next time. One of my old time midwest friends Mike Doggendorf, now a big time gym owner in Louisville, KY won the SHW division with an 1851 TOT via 716, 435, 699. At 64", 325 lbs., it's evident that 15 years of pro-wrestling has kept him tough enough to resume his contributions to the iron wars.

50-54: Robert "Pappy" Charles of OK waltzed to yet another 148 victory. Pappy was in an uncharacteristically good mood the whole weekend. Fabian Wamb-sgans hit a great 650 SQ and took another National Masters title home to Michigan. Klasner and Posey got silver and bronze to him. Posey had to remind me several times that his name wasn't Troy Hicks. Atkinson outdistanced Mintus 1559 - 1510 @ 198. E. Fink outlasted T. Buljat with a stronger DL (600) to pull out the bronze 1438 - 1416. Scott Velliquette, a carpet store manager from N. Hollywood, CA, pulled all PRs out of his hat to oust ME's Bob Lamb for 5th in this division. Scott has put 159 lbs. on his TOT since last year. Olinger had a 7/9 outing, TOT 1466, and the 220 victory. Burgard was 1262 and 2nd overall to him. At 275, Tim Bentley showed flashes of past brilliance. A dozen years ago Tim became the first lifter over 40 in History to BP 600. Today he put together 804 SQ, 501 BP (4th attempt WR 512) and a 661 DL for 1967. He'll be back over the one ton figure next time for sure. Brian Meek of Irvine, CA lifted modestly (for him) @ 308. He did a 683 SQ and 507 BP, hardly working up a sweat. Rushing to catch a flight home, he yanked up a birdweight 413 DL and took off. Lee Pestka, now studying medicine in El Paso, zeroed in the SQ - not a fun weekend for the big fellow.

55-59 Joe Nickele of Irving, TX entered his first National meet in 40 years of lifting and ran away with the 165 title. Joe is usually working 14 days at a stretch as a cargo pilot and seldom has time to train. He established 2 WR DLs of 534 and 562 en route to a magnificent 1322 TOT. Shucks with that kind of lifting, it's an honor to be bridesmaid to Joe for this year. Radar Capehart had planned to lift, but blew out a knee beforehand. John Varrone, CT, started off like gangbusters in capturing the 181 division, but he wrenched a knee SQing 545 and had to token lift the rest of the way. He's one of the all-time greatest combined power - olympic lifters. Jim Rouse hit 1526 for the 198 win, with only two misses all day. He was unable to red light himself, but admits if he could have, he would have. Somebody else had to do that and must have loved every minute of it. Leonard Lense of AZ took an early lead over Jim with a 606 SQ, but then found the BP to be his early way out. Dan Hamblet, Charles Clonce, and D. MacKenzie all captured golds in the 220, 308 and SHW classes respectively. For Charles "Santa" Clonce it was his 6th National Masters title in as many organizations and outings in a short span of 7 weeks or so. That must be some kind of a record. Charlie smashed WRs in the SQ (622), BP (325), and TOT (1493) here. He must have put a couple of hundred grand on his truck speedometer just this year with his mar-thon drives across the country from Oklahoma. Whatta stud! Mrs. Clonce is always with him lending her moral support. This time she entered and won a gold in the Women's BP division. Hey, why not?

The 60-64 Group saw some outstanding lifting. Fred Glass of NJ had a banner day and was very happy. He shattered 4 World Records @ 148 to a new best ever 1008 TOT. In the SQ, a 424 3rd busted his own record. He then hit 402, 424, and finally 429 in the DL. Fred and I lifted together in the very first Junior Nationals in NJ way back in August 1965. Richard Flores was utterly phenomenal @ 165. He obliterated the WR SQ twice (507 & 529) and with a 259 BP done, he hoisted another WR (523 DL) on his last ditch effort - TOT 1311. A classic match took place between GA's L.B. Baker and Bob Bassman of Dallas, TX. Baker jumped off to an early lead and never relinquished it via his 501 SQ, increased following two misses. A 55 lb. lead was too much even for the amazing Bassman to overcome. Bob, however, was able to post the higher DL of the pair. Their rivalry is not over by any means. Irons got bronze to them. Ron Damon of ME and Bob (I'm big and red all over) Spaulding of MI placed one - two at 220. There were two entries in the 65-69 age group. Mr. Richey was very impressive in setting 5 WRs @ 148: SQ - 363, BP - 248 (opener), DL - 402 & 413, and TOT - 1025! C. North pulled a great 501 DL for 220 class honors!

NATIONAL BENCH PRESS CHAMPIONSHIPS - The outstanding lifter of the APF National BP Championships had to be Bryan Gregory in the submaster mens (33-39) 220 class. Bryan opened with a big 501. After that he went straight to a WR try of 529 to beat his own WR of 524! Not this time, with the dreaded long pauses, but Bob will break this record under better conditions in the not too distant future. Bob Walker looked sharp in the 45-49 group when he blew up a WR 529 @ 275. He pulled the fat from the fire on his final lift after missing it twice. Robert Ingram in the 50-54 group established a WR with 446 @ 81 on his final try. M. Roberts in the 198 Juniors broke a WR himself when he punched aloft a hefty 468 on a 2nd attempt. He also tried 479, but not this time. Jack Twet had a record under his name also - a 325 BP in the 65-69 275 lb. division on his last desperate effort. Among the women we saw the return of shutterbug Sydney Thoms to BP action. She sported a new streamlined 21st Century chassis and popped up 226 opener like a cork in a rainbarrel with narrow misses at more. And that's the end of the story for this year!

laughable before stalling out trying 688 - TOT 1813. What could Arnold do if he got serious? I pinned him down and the easy going fellow promised he'd crack the one ton barrier in Vegas. His demeanor reminds me so much of a past superstar named Walter Thomas. Those are tough footsteps to trace, but he possesses all the tools to be just as great.

Runner-up Dougherty gave a good account of himself. Joe SQed 705, which was ruled out for depth. Then he proned 501 (his specialty lift) and raised a 600 DL as easy as pie in conventional close-footed stance. His TOT of 1714 is good lifting in any league, but was well below the 1796 he'd done last year in Florida.

198 - a very disappointing class as there were no superstars this year. Jesse Kellum, who is light years ahead of everybody else, was finally tying the knot with Carol on June 12th and was not in the lineup. Obviously Jesse, along with Matt Zweng scared everyone off. A week before the deadline there were no entries in this category at all. As it turned out two Michiganders struggled against each other to devour the plum which was ripe for picking. Tony Butson, 35, from Trenton was 3rd last year with 1658 and looked like the successor to Jesse. Instinct prompted Mike "Mad Dog" Andrus, 32, from Clinton Township to drink a glass of water to make this class and give Tony an unexpected tussle. Andrus, at a mere 182.7, sat deep with 567, and also 611, and hit good position on his final 633, but couldn't stand. Butson looked to be out of sync. He came in with 617, but lost his balance before the rack signal. His repeat was shallow. His back to the wall, he sucked it up for a 3 white success on his do-or die try. Andrus gave away a lot in the BP, getting 380 and no more. Butson managed 402, but couldn't negotiate 413 nor 424. Tony had the lead, but not as much as he'd hoped for. Mad Dog missed/made 578, then finished 606 for a 1598 TOT. It was up to Butson, who got on the board with 551. He might have won with 584, but elected to try 600.

Tony wasn't in the shape he'd been last year, and missed the lift.

220 - Many of last year's tough lineup didn't appear: defending champ Tony Hardridge, Mike Meza of TX, and Hugh Dunagan from OK. The winner this year was a foregone conclusion anyway, barring some sort of natural disaster. Matt Zweng, 27, from Chesterfield, MI, took my smart advice and moved up a class. With that change, he found a new resurgence of strength. Charlie Maxwell, 3rd last year, was a true medal threat. Unfortunately after squatting 782, he bailed out in the BP, failing all three attempts. That still left the most entries of any class this year. Working from the bottom to the top, I'll survey the contestants: Dave Karem, 35, from El Paso, TX, had trained very hard for this meet. He had the untimely misfortune of breaking an ankle before coming. Dave decided to make the best of it. He missed, then made a 650 SQ, passing his last try. He popped a 446 BP, but couldn't get 468. The DL was painful for Dave. He managed to pull 551, but 600 was too much under these trying circumstances. He passed his final lift and settled for a 1647 TOT. Dave's vulnerability allowed Joe Avigliano, 40, from Burbank, CA to slip into 6th position. Joe's really on a roll. He's tacked no less than 281 lbs. on his TOT in one short year. Here, he upped his sum 33 from just 3 weeks prior in Aurora at the Masters. Avigliano, inspired by his wife's superlative lifting, set PRs once again on all his lifts and TOT: 650 SQ (a beaut), 402 BP (good for more) and a 2nd attempt 606 DL - TOT 1659. Way to go, Joe. Eddie Swan, a Kellum protege from Mandeville, LA, lifted well in his first Seniors. He came in at 209, and had well balanced lifts with 644 in both the SQ and DL along with 3 fine benches, topping off at 452 - 5th place. Stephan Smith, 35, from Methuen, ME was back from last year. Steve SQed 672, missing two attempts to register 716. He matched his DL from last year (639)

and achieved the 490 BP he'd missed a year ago. Did I mention that he had dropped down a weight class? Chad Hammond, 27, Portsmouth, OH, was in his 3rd consecutive Seniors. His balance problem resurfaced and was able to get only one mark on the board in each of the lifts. His technique relies on a hair-trigger groove. If it isn't perfect, his equilibrium wavers. Still, he earned bronze, two places higher than last year to go with the 2nd place finish he had in '98. His lifts this year were a 744 (needed 3 attempts) SQ, a 501 BP 2nd attempt repeat, and a 672 DL opener for 1918. Mike Fessenden, 32, from Lenox, MI continues to progress. His deeper SQ form yielded a terrific 848 3rd attempt that put him in the temporary lead. He sputtered in the BP, needing all 3 attempts to displayed a significant increase in strength. He went down and came right up with all 3 SQs: 771, 804, and finally a great 826. It was low enough and he blasted right through the sticking point. Matt smoked a 529 BP a second round repeat success. On a final lift he sat his 551 too high on his chest, and couldn't get the proper drive with a weight he's done before. His final deadlift - 672 - popped into final position so easily I thought he could have done 705 with no problem. Zweng can capture his 2nd WPC World Title this fall, but he must train harder than he's ever done before to defeat the defending champ - GBR's Hammerton. Under pressure, Zweng is a fighting champion and one of the best.

to end with 510. She attempted a pull for bronze but gravity kicked in. Holland's Brenda VanderMeulen broke National Junior National records on her way to a 9th place with 440. She and her mom, who lifted in the 75s, were coached by her dad, Ferry, who looks like he's training for fitness these days. DelaRosa-Payne represented Trinidad & Tobago for her country's first international experience. Unfortunately, squat depth was a problem and she did not total. We hope she'll be back to try again.

90+ kilos - These large ladies were spearheaded by Russia's Anastasia Pavlova. Anastasia was also my partner for water ballet after the banquet! Her 2 1/2 kilo victory over Chinese Taipei's Chen-Yeh Chao was spectacular. It was an emotional 1st time gold for Pavlova who went 9/9 with 265, 152.5, and 225 for 642.5. Chao made all of her attempts, passing her third bench to end with 255, 170, and 215 for 640. She is certainly an amazing lifter, and still holds the title of biggest IPF bench by a woman with 178.5. USA's Lizabeth Willett dominated for bronze, adding a whopping 50 kilos to her total, with PRs across the board and an amazing 9/9 performance breaking American squat and total records in the process. Lizzy, it was an honor to wrap your knees. Argentinean children came in droves to cheer for her and get autographs. Thanks for being a great roomie Liz! I definitely benefited from your positive energy! After you live with someone for a while they say you start to act like each other. By the end of 9 days I was smiling and walking with a bounce in my step ... Liz was swearing like a trucker! Maybe I can bench more now! 4th place Katarina Nokua of Finland moved into the supers but had difficulty with the squats, making her opener 215 on her 3rd attempt. She went on to bench 105 and pull 190 to end with 510. She plans to lift in the 90 next year and has plans to stomp me. USA's Deborah Ferrell finished seventh, taking token a squat and deadlift to compete purely in the bench. She is scheduled for knee surgery and was having some shoulder difficulty before the meet. Still, she sure can bench, lifting 160 on her second. Hang in there Deb. It sure would be nice to grab that title of biggest bench ever by a woman!

The team point calculations delivered top honors to Russia, who again attained the most points available with a perfect score of 72. Chinese Taipei was second with 51 points. The US team was a close third with 44, the most scored by any US women's team since 1996.

Our team has some steadfast and loyal followers who deserve much praise and thanks. Larry Maile was an excellent Head Coach who chose perfect numbers and is a great people manager. His guidance has certainly benefited the US Women's program more than words allow for. P.J. Couvillion again served as our loyal referee, allowing us the bronze team placing with all his hard work. He sacrificed an opportunity to referee at the World's Strongest Man competition to help us out. Kirk Karwoski is always a great morale booster and is a super hands-on helper. Kirk, you're not only a legend in men's powerlifting, you're also becoming one in women's powerlifting! Mike Harte and Iain Burgess were there for unwavering assistance and were elemental to our team's success. Special thanks to German coach Frank Mueller who assisted with some extremely tight bench shirts.

The IPF has several loyal people that consistently make these contests superior. Heiner Koberich travels the globe to attend championships and graciously provides up to the minute stats for just about everyone. Thanks for your efficiency and accuracy! John Stephenson is also an IPF workaholic, who puts in overtime assuring our federation's integrity. He was carrying with him an extremely buff picture of himself as a bodybuilder. You looked great, but we're glad you made the switch. The South American hospitality showed all the lifters especially congenial from the extra efforts of Argentinian President Jose Puentes, to spotters like Willy, George (Hor-Hay), and Andres and hotel staff like Katrina. Thank you so much for your patience and hard work. Congratulations to all the strong ladies that competed. The IPF has stringent regulations and expectations, it is an honor to contend. We look forward to next year's battle in the Czech Republic.

American Record. Team Champions: Team Torque, Deadlift. Thanks to all the lifters that made this meet a success. We had 45 lifters. Our biggest turnout in New York since 1993. We will be back some time in October for the New York State Championships. Team Torque brought out the most lifters with at least 15 members. Thanks to the old timers Paul Buchbauer & Joe Alongi for coming to NY to free some space for the lifters in New Jersey the next day. It was good to see Amil Bruneau from Ct, an Old WNPF member from 1992. There were many old ADFPA lifters in the audience observing the meet which was good. We hope to have a bigger turnout in October and even more fun. Look for the WNPF to return to Connecticut in 2001. (Thanks to WNPF for these results)		J. Isenhower	405	320	505	1230

Bench Press/Deadlift Championships was at World
Gym. A special thanks to World Gym owner Dwight
Steadman and his staff for hosting the competition.
Also thanks to Mark Chellino, Craig Richards and Richard Auxer for their help judging, loading and spotting throughout the day. (Especially to you Richard, who spotted and loaded the whole competition!)
In the bench press competition, Nick Mezera took the teenage 13-15 class with 215, weighing in at 181. At 16-17, Jake Stefanek was strong at 148, finishing with 220, then a 225 fourth attempt PR. Sam Gargano took the 181 class with a solid 300 @ 178. The final lifter in the 16-17 age group was Jeremy Winker who won at 220 with an easy 305. Jeremy officially set his high school bench press record at this competition. Congratulations, Jeremy!
In the junior men's class Jon Lucadano got all three of his attempts, finishing with 370 for the win at 198. Dan Modal took the 275s with a strong 415, just missing a fourth with 440. Second at 275 was Jason Dombroski with 235. Moving on to the women's competitors, newcomer Michele Zapchuk ended with 115 at a 132 bodyweight for the win in the junior women's class. At submaster it was Ann Borders with two new PRs on the day, including a final attempt of 155. Laura Metzgar continued her undefeated streak by winning the 165s and pressing 165. Second at 165 was Catherine Hopkins with 120. Cindy Irons won the master women's 40-44 age group at 181 with a strong 135. Diane Harper, suffering from a leg injury, was unable to get her opener of 145, lifting in the master women's 50-54, 198 class. At 60-64 Connie Clark, lifting in her first competition, took the 114 class with her opener of 80. Jeanne Christensen won at 165 with 135. Here we have two ladies, past sixty years of age, just starting out in the sport, doing great and serving as a great example to everyone else. I think that's fantastic! In the open women's class, Jo Phillips won at 198 with a strong 165. Jo is the wife of Vernon Phillips, who is responsible for the training and encouragement of most of the women who lifted on this day, including Jo, Catherine Hopkins, Cindy Irons, Diane Harper and Jeanne Christensen. Boy, I've sure got a lot more respect for that man! (To put up with five cranky wo ...) Hey, look here, in the men's submaster 181 class Leroy Banks wins again with a strong "raw" 405. Has this guy ever been beaten? At 198 it was Lance Porfilio, getting only his opener of 405, but still good enough for the win. Mark Chellino had a good day with the second largest press of the day, ending with 545. Mark easily took the submaster 220 class with Eric Maroscher second at 385. Eric had some problems, taking all three attempts to get what is usually an easy opener. In the men's 40-44 class Tim Widner had a perfect day at 220 finishing with 410 for the win. Keith Earley took the 308 class (putting on a little weight, Keith!) with a great personal best 420. At 45-49 Barry Blackmon got a strong 380 on his second attempt before failing with 400 for the win at 242. Mike O'Brien took the 308 class, weighing only 280 but only getting his opener of 440. Harry Ruhser came all the way from Iowa to capture the master 50-54 181 class, getting all three of his lifts and finishing with 325. Then at 60-64 was Joe Marsala, a great guy and a great lifter with an even greater attitude. Joe finished the day with a new personal record of 250 while capturing the 275s. Good job, Joe! In the open division Jesse Espinoza returned to competition after a year or so layoff to take the 181 class with a strong 390. Craig Richards, the "Thin Man From Lockport" had an even greater day, finishing on top of the 198s with a personal best 450 at a 192 bwt! Of course, all of

"Thin Man's" success would be due to his great coaching and training buddies Will Saranczak, Jeff Jarzynka and Mark Chellino! You think he could do that on his own... not! Todd Dohrs had a good day at 220, taking that title but getting only his opener of 375. Second place at 220 was Andy Bramer with 360, missing 375 for the win on his final attempt. Nectar Kirkiks looked strong at 242, taking that title with 380 with a near miss with 400 on his third attempt. Pete Kleitz put on quite a show at 275, finishing with an easy 575 for the win and best lifter honors. Pete went for a personal best 600 on his final attempt but even with all the energy coming from the crowd and fellow lifters, Pete seemed to be just a little out of the groove. I bet the next time he'll blow that weight away! Last up was Big Jeff Jarzynka who had been nursing a shoulder injury, getting only his opener of 370 for the win at SHW. Jeff, who has been a strongman competitor for the past two years, is usually a 500 plus bencher. In the deadlift competition Nick Mezera won his second title of the day with his win at teenage 13-15, 181 class. Nick pulled a strong 405, following that with a great 415 fourth attempt. Jake Stefanek did the same with his win at 16-17, 148. At a 144 bwt, Jake was successful with a 385 third and a 390 fourth attempt. Now that's great pulling for both of these young lifters! At 18-19 Tim Hollendonner was even more impressive! At a 203 bwt, this 19 year old pulled 560 then a 570 fourth for the win at 220! Wow! Then up stepped Brian "Elvis" Thompson who actually out-pulled Tim by formula with a pr 545 @ 177, taking the 181 junior men's class in style! Both of these young lifters are Eric Maroscher protégés... what else! Tony Coniglio looked strong at 242 with 585 for the win. Tony only weighed in at 226. Dan Morial also won his second title of the day with a big 585 pull at 275. Second place went to training partner Jason Dombroski who finished with 445. In the junior women's division Michele Zapchuk continued her winning way in her first competition with 205 @ 132. Catherine Hopkins took the submaster women's 165 class with a great 315 PR fourth attempt. Connie Clark went three for three at 114 in the 60-64 master class finishing with a personal record 225. Our other 60-64 lifter, Jeanne Christensen, took the 165s with another pr fourth with 285. In the open women's class Jo Phillips got only her opener of 330 for the win at 198. Great lifting, all you ladies! Best lifter in the deadlift competition, Eric Maroscher, pulled a personal best 650 for the win at submaster 220. Eric also took the open 220 class. In the master 40-44 division Mitch Shapiro won at 198, though only pulling his opener of 500 for the win at 198 in the 45-49 division but stalled twice at 540. Jim has really improved in the past year, and could have easily gotten his 540, but was just a little out of the groove on this day. Still a great pull at 198! Harry Ruhser took the 50-54 class with an easy 425 at 181. In the open division Jesse Espinoza won again at 181, pulling a smooth 450 to lockout. Second to Eric Maroscher at 220 was Geno Cabrera with a great 600 pull weighing in at only 218! Third place went to Andy Bramer with 565, followed by Todd Rohrs with 550. Nectar Kirkiks only got his opener of 600 but that was good enough for the win at 242. He was followed by Domenic Marliariello who finished with 590. Rob Keyes took the 275s for a new Wisconsin state record of 620. Maroscher Power team took team honors with Chellino Power team second and Powerline Gym of Chicago Heights third. Thanks again to everyone who helped out and to the lifters and the spectators. (Thanks to Dr. Darrell Latch for providing these contest results)

Best Lifters: Master Men - John Magee; Open Men - Joe Carter. The first annual Son Light Power National Drug-Free Powerlifting Championship was held at Son Light Power Gym. A special thanks to all the judges, spotters and loaders who helped

laid back on the squat for a big pull, which he got on his fourth attempt when he locked out 540! This was a new personal mark for Larry and gave him a 1215 total for the day. Up next was the big guy, John Magee winner of the master men 50-54 group of the SHW class. John opened with 730 in the squat, then nailed 800 before getting a big 850 for his final attempt of the day. That 850 was good and deep and would have passed anywhere! Then in the bench John settled with an easy 470, before missing the lockout with 500 for his final attempt. By the time the deadlift came around John was a little bit tired, so he only pulled his opener of 600. But that gave John a big total of 1920 which was good enough for best lifter honors in the master's competition. Another great favorite was Frank Porter, who will have turned 59 by the time you read this. Frank is a great competitor and a great lifter who competed on this day even though he was just in the middle of his training cycle. Frank finished the day with a 470 squat, 295 bench and a 475 deadlift for a 1240 total and the win at 242, master men 55-59. Frank's only miss of the day came with his final attempt on the bench with 310. In the police and fire division Derek Hall won the 220 class with his greatest day of lifting ever. With all new PRs, Derek squatted 500 for the first time, benched 300 for the first time, and pulled 480 for a big 1280 total for the win. Both Derek and training partner Joe Newton (the notorious Bumblebee Brothers) did great; Joe taking the 242 class to go with his win at submaster. In the open division Dave Newman captured the 198 class with his 1520 total, mentioned earlier. There was a real battle at 220, with Joe Carter finishing out on top of Duane Burlingame 1690 to 1675. Joe finished the squat with a strong and deep 680 to Duane's 630. In the bench Duane out-lifted Joe 390 to 380. And in the deadlift Duane out-lifted Joe 655 to 630. But it was the squat that decided the title and gave Joe the win in the total by a mere fifteen pounds. Joe also received the best lifter trophy for the open men's competition. Kevin Hudson had a great day also, posting all new personal records, even hitting all three of his fourth attempts for a big 1240 total. Kevin squatted 425, benched 365 and pulled 450 for his record setting total. In the bench press competition Big Ed Coates came all the way from southern Missouri to win the master men 50-54 title at 308. Ed finished with a personal best 370, just missing the lockout with 380. John Magee took the shw title with 470 in the same age group. Joe Carter took the 220 open title and it was Brad Saunders for the win at 275. Brad got all four of the attempts he took, the last three being new PRs, to finish with 415 and the title. Great lifting and a great time had by all. I am proud of these lifters in the way they helped and encouraged each other, the great lifting they all did, and the fun we all had. See you all next year! (results by Dr. Darrell Latch)

An outstanding weekend of lifting took place at first event sanctioned by Redeemed Among the World, Incorporated, or "RAW." RAW is a sports ministry headquartered on the East Coast that is dedicated to the growth of teenage powerlifting. RAW offers both youth and adults drug-tested powerlifting competition at the Regional, National, and International levels. The goal of RAW, Inc. is to teach young athletes the importance of: (1) developing a personal relationship with God, (2) respecting their parents, (3) working to their academic potential, (4) serving and respecting others, and (5) being a positive role model both on and off the competitive platform. Simply stated, RAW, Inc. is an organization for lifters who want to be a part of a spiritually-based powerlifting organization established to serve America's youth. Our 2000 contest schedule is listed in this month's edition of PL USA under "100% RAW." First, thank you to Mrs. Clarice Sharp of Danville, Virginia. Mrs. Sharp's daughters, Katie and Vicki, lift for Chatham, Virginia's Hargrave Military Academy. Over the years, Mrs. Sharp has been instrumental in promoting teenage powerlifting on the East Coast through her generous financial support. Mrs. Sharp not only donated all of the platform equipment utilized by RAW, but also helped us start up the organization without going into debt. We are truly blessed to have such a wonderful person in our corner, and I thank God for all of her support! Special thanks and congratulations to our newly established Board of Directors and contest staff! Thank to Todd and Trish Boehm of Marlboro Spine & Sports for medical support; Alan and Teresa Kelly of Kelly Sports for videotaping Jerry Shockley of Virginia Polygraph for drug testing; Graham Bartholomew of Waldorf, Maryland for everything (announcing, scoring, judging, spotting, loading, ENCOURAGING, and pulling an awesome 665 pound deadlift!); Dave Lhota, Wardell Sewell, Mike Sansalone, Paul Griffith, Tom Wiley, Jon Sauter, Ben Bownas, Jason Anderson, Debbie Burke, Paul Bossi, Carl Eliot, Clay Draud, Bryan Sofonowski, Caryn Tshontikidis, Rich DeFeo, Rick Dryden, Bryce Wergeland, and everyone I forgot for your help on the platform; Kent Island High School (especially Bryan Sofonowski, Tom Dillard, Alphonso Sorrell, and Greg Cheers) for allowing us to host the Regionals on Maryland's Eastern Shore; my wife, Caryn, for all of her love and support; and, most importantly, THANK YOU, LORD, FOR MAKING REDEEMED AMONG THE WORLD A REALITY! Megan Ogelthorpe of the "Gym & Junk Power

Team" from Virginia Beach, Virginia, led the women's charge as the outstanding lifter in the KIDSTRONG division. Island Power Team's Alina Siira was the outstanding Teenage lifter (Stevensville, Maryland), and "Gym & Junk's" Maureen Cahill was the outstanding Master lifter. Congratulations to all the women who competed at the Regionals, and to all of our record setters! On the men's side, "Wilson Powerlifting's" (Washington, D.C.) Yanni Tshontikidis was the outstanding KIDSTRONG lifter. "Elizabeth City Elite's" (Elizabeth City, North Carolina) Adrain Armstrong captured the Youth honors, and Indian Lake, Pennsylvania's Matthew Walker, a member of the "Thunderbird Power Team," was the outstanding Teenage lifter. The "Missing Link's" John Audia (White Plains, New York) took the open honors, and Waynesboro, Pennsylvania's John Polak was the outstanding Master lifter. Congratulations to all the men who competed at the Regionals, and to all of our record setters! Several teams competed at the Regionals. Wilson Powerlifting captured both the Women's title and the Mixed title in the Teenage division. Wilson was led by World Champion Rachel Kraft and 148 pounder Mike Nesbitt. Hargrave Military Academy captured the Teenage title in the Men's Division thanks to wins by new lifters Steven Fahey, David Hudson, and James "Duke" Shelton. Virginia's Gym & Junk, coached by Bruce and Maureen Cahill, took the Mixed title in the Youth division, and DOCS GYM, led by Masters Champion Doc Junktins, took the Mixed title in the Open division. Finally, New York's Missing Link put on quite a show for our youth in winning their first (and surely not their last!) RAW Men's title. Thanks and congratulations to all the coaches and teams for their participation! On a final note, Caryn and I would like to thank and welcome everyone for their support of powerlifting's newest sports ministry, and we pray that our hearts can stay focused on God's Kingdom! (Thanks to Dr. Spero Tshontikidis for providing these results) son of Philadelphia had lots of lumps in all the strong places, and finished just behind Colin. California's John Planas made a solid looking debut to USAPL Men's Nationals competition and Ken Howard, who didn't use any supportive shirts or suits, finished out the finishers, except for Mitch Edelstein, who was lifting very conservatively, as if he didn't want to break something. Ray Ebner was not able to satisfy the judges on any of his 705 squat attempts. Willie Croner was entered here, but weighed in up a weight class. Shawn Cain was entered and present, but he had pulled a groin muscle two weeks before and was trying to save his best shot for the World Masters team. John Defoor apparently was injured and did not appear and Richard Auxer also did not appear.

In the 275 lb. division, Pat McGettigan of Blue Mounds, Wisconsin showed some improvement in the squat, but really came to get a national record deadlift of 815 lbs., with which he came close with on two occasions. Grant Higa of Renton, WA, was next up in the class and with a couple more attempts on the board he could have put a little more pressure on Pat. This large class was divided into 2 flights, and Jeff Robison rose from the ranks of the second flight to end up in third place off some very powerful squatting and a little less bodyweight than Mike Kautz, from Dixon, CA. Paul Fletcher was just five kilos back and Wayne Drosser was just 5 kilos back of Paul. One notch further back was Mike Anderson, a former USPF champion, followed by Brad Madvig of St. Louis Park, Minnesota. Wade Hanna of Lansing, Michigan tried a Michigan state record deadlift of 694 twice, but missed it. Just back of Wade was the performance of Mark

Lausen, a cohort of Dennis Bracken back in Los Alamos, New Mexico, and that was the same total as USAPL Executive Committee member Mike Hartle. Scott Lade of DePere, Wisconsin, could not get a deadlift past the judge's rigid scrutiny. Having grip trouble in the deadlift was Kurt Weyrough of Elkhorn, WI and Nick Best had depth problems in the squat. Kelvin Hayes insisted that he "had" his massive opening squat of 782 lbs. but he stumbled and struggled with it twice and then passed his final shot at it. Neither Mike Frizzel of Graymont, IL, with a patched up squat suit, nor Willie Croner, weighing 116.1 kilos, found the knack to get a squat on the scoreboard.

In the SHWs, Brad Gillingham of Minnetonka, Minnesota had a spectacular day, making all three squats under world class standards of judging, and he opened with an easy 578 bench press before jumping to a weight that's been a little bit of a bug-a-bo for him - 600 lbs. - making that and a perfectly fine 611. He opened easily with a 777 deadlift, mysteriously missed 821 on a technical judgement, and then conservatively went up to 826 on his 3rd try and made it easily. He had hoped to take a shot at a deadlift in the 848 to 854 range, and bump his PR in the total up another notch or two. Brad will shortly be going to Akita, Japan to demonstrate his powerlifting prowess at the World Games Festival (held three years prior to the World Games) and he'll be able to scout out the territory of the next Men's World Championships in advance. Brad is very pleased with his conversion to the hook grip, which changes the pulling movement for the better, as there's no twist involved. It took him a while to get over the pain of using the hook grip, but after he saw some former Iron Curtain athletes using it, and made the gradual changeover, he's found it to be quite an asset. Shawn Culnan was hanging tough with Brad and was celebrating his 821 squat attempt, shouting out "How About THAT!!", not immediately realizing that it had not been accepted by the judges. Even though he went on to miss a 551 bench and an 815 deadlift, he still had a quality 965 kilo (2127 lb.) total. Dan Gaudreau of Elizabeth, Colorado, who looks very much like Beau Moore, had a tough day with only 4 attempts to the good, but he was easily in third place over Dennis Hulslander from Stuartstown,

Brad Gillingham crashed through the 600 lb. bench press barrier

PA, who made all 3 deadlifts and exulted in the moment. Another impressive lifter was Malcolm Ahlo of Ewa Beach, Hawaii, whose 771 squat was deep, and fast, and very impressive. He was able to finish up ahead of Abdul Aziz Wesolowski, who had moved up from the 275 pound class, and who missed a Michigan state record deadlift 744 twice. Van Hatfield of Utah had problems everywhere, missing his first two squats, then getting his final on a repeated attempt to stay in the contest, but then he only got one bench press and after that he couldn't get a deadlift passed. Cory Callahan of Roswell, Georgia ran into depth problems in the squat, and didn't get a lift on the board. Wade Likens of Girard, Ohio likewise had trouble with a 600 lb. squat.

As far as the major distinctions at the meet: Larry Maile was awarded the Billy Jack Talton "Coach of the Year" award; Johnny Graham received the Brother Bennet award; Best Squat was by Rob Wagner; Best Bench Press was by Brad Gillingham; Best Deadlift was by David Ricks and in the Best Lifter Overall category: 3rd place was Brad Gillingham; 2nd place was James McGlynn; and 1st place was David Ricks. In the team competition, Team Hawaii was third; Team Indiana second; and Team Quest was first place. As many of the team members gathered up for the presentation of the first place team award, Jeremy Arias surprised everybody by doing a back flip. Hopefully, that is the way we'll be able to celebrate our performance at the Men's Worlds in Japan this November.

Administratively, Mike Overdeer was re-elected President of USA PL and Dan Lark was re-elected an Executive Committee member. Ray Benemerito was voted on to the Executive Committee, and elected to Athlete's Reps positions were Pat Anderson, Shawn Cain, Brad Gillingham, Leslie Look, and Larry Miller.

POWER HOTLINE

is the twice a month FLASH bulletin of the Iron Game, produced through the offices of POWERLIFTING USA for over 18 years, and sent out to its subscribers via FIRST CLASS MAIL so you will get the news while it is still NEW. Each edition is packed with a huge variety of IRON GAME-oriented information-almost all of which you will never find in any other composite source. Recent issues cover a dramatically effective new performance aid - tested at Stanford University (an average set of pullups increased from 14 to 44!), the unique distinction presented to IPF General Secretary Heiner Koberich by the German National Government, which long time masters competitor got his picture into SPORTS

ILLUSTRATED, and a new FREE virtual on-line fitness trainer. It's only $28 for 24 information packed FIRST CLASS issues ($39 for overseas air mail) to POWERLIFTING USA, Post Office Box 3238, Camarillo, CA 93011

REMEMBERING MUSCLE BEACH

... those were the golden days of physical culture, heading to what would become the most famous beach in Iron Game history - MUSCLE BEACH - hitting poses, working out on the rings, pumping iron, building human pyramids just for the crowds walking by to appreciate. So many great names of Physical Culture used this particular stretch of sand as their touchstone to a collective of ideas and personalities who would go on to influence thousands, if not millions, around the world. The story of how this magical place came about, and what became of those whose paths crossed there will connect you with the roots of your sport. (128 pages, 125 classic black and white photos) available from Powerlifting USA, Box 467, Camarillo, CA 93011 for $26.95 plus $4.00 for postage and handling.

"The Strongest Shall Survive"... this is the classic Bill Starr training manual, long out of print, but now available once again. (See our review of the book in the Feb/97 PL USA, page 10). Price for a copy of the book is $20 plus $4 postage and handling. Send your order to Powerlifting USA, P.O. Box 467, Camarillo, California 93011, before this book sells out again FOREVER!

The response to our offer of the new book MUSCLETOWN USA by John D. Fair has been overwhelming - this insightful examination on the pervasive impact of Bob Hoffman and the York Barbell Club on today's Iron Game triad of Bodybuilding, Olympic Lifting, and Powerlifting, is as revealing as it is entertaining. The foundations of our sport obviously had some cracks, but the bedrock of our origins was just as obviously vital, resilient, and impossible to keep down. This is a book that you will be compelled to read from cover to cover. (432 pages, 70 illustrations) Paperback edition is $23.50 plus $4 shipping and handling per book (we have some more of the hardbound books in stock - $65 plus $4 s/h). Send orders payable to Powerlifting USA, Box 467, Camarillo, CA 93011.

We also offer a wood grain plaque with clear cover, ready to hang. The certificate and display plaque are available together for $21.95. If you have appeared on a TOP 100 list, you are eligible. Send your name, street address, weight class, lift, date it was made, the amount of weight, and the list that your name appeared on. Corrections... John Bott indicates that Bill Mimnaugh did not receive credit for his 505 BP in the 308 class in the results published for the APF Halloween BP/Graveyard DL meet of Oct. 30, 1999. Linda Christopher indicates that in the results of the WPF World Championships, she competed in both the 114 lb. open bench press and the 114 lb. submaster categories as well. Tim Bruner should have been ranked No. 13 in the TOP 100 rankings for the 242 lb. class. John Monk's name was misspelled in the results published in PL USA from the USAPL Massachusetts State Open (11/20/99). Shary Barbee should have been credited with a 275 lb. bench press on the Women's TOP 20 listing for 1999 in the SHW division. Dr. Michael Ludovico was not credited on the TOP 100 220 lb. class listing for his bench press of 529 lbs. Cole Dworek's bench press of 440 was not listed on the TOP 100 ranking for the 198 lb. class. Jerry Capello's lifts on the TOP 20 rankings for Masters in 1999 were actually done in the 242 lb. division. We apologize for any mistakes and we encourage you to please send any corrections that you find to "PL USA ERRORS" Department, Post Office Box 467, Camarillo, California 93011.
